DONAHEYS HAPPY ABOUT THEIR NEW HOME

House "Built For Antiques" Fulfills Old Dream

INDIAN LAKE, O., Dec. 27.—Happy as can be that his public life is drawing to a close, Governor A. Vic Donahey and his wife now are preparing to live as for the past twenty-five years they dreamed they would live.

It's the fulfillment of a dream of a quarter of a century—the home that the governor and his wife are building with their own hands here.

It will be a house built for antiques—every nook and corner of it built for a purpose which only Mrs. Donahey, who conceived it, knows.

For Mrs. Donahey planned the house step by step, told the contractor, Joseph C. Wylie, Russell's Point, what she wanted done and wondered why that personage didn't give up patience oftener than he did as he obeyed her edicts.

And at her side all the time the house was being built has been Vic Donahey, who in public life may be a governor, but who, it is known, gets a lot more fun out of being just a plain citizen, a father and a husband.

The governor worked and is working at the hardest kind of jobs at this new house. He wields the hammer, uses the saw, pushes the wheelbarrow, mixes concrete, lays stone—there's nothing he doesn't do and Wylie considers him an able assistant.

It was twenty-five years ago that Mrs. Donahey first began gathering antiques that she and her husband knew some day would go into a home which would be built the way they wanted it.

But it was only last September when the governor, looking out for his future, began the erection of the home at Indian Lake, on the same island where the other little stucco cottage stands.

The home is an all-Ohio home, with the exception of the antiques, the governor says proudly. It will cost me about $10,000 all told because I built it out here," he said.

"But had I built it in some of the exclusive sections in Columbus, I have no doubt it would have cost at least $25,000."

The governor told how he made his purchases for the home—how he got a lot of beams from an old barn that was being torn down nearby, pine trees from his old home at New Philadelphia, and other articles from old buildings.

An old iron gate from New Orleans, more than 100 years old, swings in the front yard. An aged ball door, still with the people through which, vary ancestors looked out, serves as the main entrance to the house.

In one large beautiful room to the right of this door will be the greater part of the antique chairs, settees and desks that Mrs. Donahey amassed—and many of these antiques truly would delight the connoisseur, for they are rare.

The library on the other side of the hallway, which is graced by an old grandfather clock and a big sun rack, will be known as the early American room, for all its furniture will be early American. And the governor says the walls will be completely lined with books.

All the furniture in the bedrooms will be antique and the governor's own bed is one of those stately four posters.

Old lamps, old chandeliers, old andirons—everything is old and because of this the joy of Governor and Mrs. Donahey knows no bounds.

The governor's home at New Philadelphia was built around two backstairs, because of the way the stairway was modeled to fit the stairs. But his new house is built to fit antiques.

Why did the governor pick Indian Lake as his permanent home and why that particular spot? "The spot mostly because of the water," he answered. "We have an artesian well here that provides good water."

"The lake because it is the only wild place left in the state. It is primitive here. Nature is as it always was. It is also on the highest elevation between the Allegheny and Rocky Mountains."

"We can go to bed at night, look out and see a light anywhere. Our son, Richard, got lost once within a half mile of the cottage and had to sleep out all night."

There will be five active occupants of the home—governor and Mrs. Donahey, Marion, Joe Jr., and Richard. Dorothy, another young daughter, will go to Mt. Ida Girls' School in Boston, following her graduation from East High School at Columbus.

HAL DONAHEY NABBED

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Hal Donahey, son of Governor Vic Donahey, was under $6 bond today for his appearance in traffic court. Hal garnered two traffic law violation tickets and appeared at the police station last night. He was advised to post bond for his appearance, and did, then was released.

Former Representative John W. Langley, above, of Kentucky, received a full pardon from President Coolidge. Langley had been sentenced to two years in the federal prison for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

ANONYMOUS CALL IS CLEW TO BAFFLING CLEVELAND MURDER

Filling Station Attendant Slain Mysteriously

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27.—Police hopes of solving the mysterious murder of Frank McCormick, filling station attendant, hinged today on an anonymous telephone call.

The call was received by J. G. Newman, Cleveland Heights, lessee of the station, last night, about the time the murder is believed to have occurred. The caller advised Newman to phone the gasvline station.

He attempted to but got no answer and five hours later McCormick's body was found lying in the darkness at the rear of the station. A bullet had penetrated his heart, his scalp was cut and one tooth had been knocked out.

The filling station was locked and McCormick's auto stood in front, his gloves on the running board.

Leo Skoroposki discovered the body while out walking his dog. In one pocket police found McCormick's purse with $1.04. It is believed that a little more than $20 of the filling station's money had been taken from his hip pocket.

Neighbors said they heard two shots near the filling station shortly after 6 p. m. and thought it was the noise of an auto backfiring.

Police believed the first shot killed McCormick and the second was fired accidentally as the slayer fled. It was considered likely that the killer had wounded himself, and a canvass of hospital and doctors' offices was being made.

Newman said that McCormick was to keep the station open until 7 or 7:30 p. m. to accommodate trucks of the Fletcher Transfer Co., Sandusky, O., which usually stopped at that time.

Shortly after Newman got home he said he was called on the telephone.

"Have you called your station recently," he was asked. "No," he said he answered. "Well, I'd advise you to call," he said he was told, and then the connection was broken.

INSANE OFFICER KILLS TWO, HURTS 9

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 27.—Two policemen were killed and six and three women wounded before officers succeeded in subduing and capturing an insane army captain, Antonio Reyna Hernandez, yesterday.

Capt. Hernandez armed himself with a machine gun and two pistols and barricaded himself in a friend's house where he resisted attempts of police to dislodge him. He fired 500 shots but finally was knocked down by a stream of water from a fire hose thrust through the window. The condition of the three women was said to be serious.

SIX MEMBERS OF FAMILY KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Six members of one family were killed and another probably fatally injured early today when the automobile in which they were returning from a Christmas party was hit by a Soo Line passenger train in Oak Park, a suburb.

The accident occurred in a rain that obscured the visions both of the driver of the car and the engineer of the train.

The car was owned by Henry Olson of Berwyn, who was killed. The other victims, police reported,

BYRD AT POLAR GATEWAY

EXPLORER REACHES FIRST OBJECTIVE ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Expedition Is 2,400 Miles Away From Civilization

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Commander Richard E. Byrd and his south polar expedition has reached the first objective in its trip to the bottom of the world.

The great ice barrier across Ross Sea, the gateway to the South Pole, was sighted Christmas Day and the expedition had reached a point 2,400 miles from the last outposts of civilization.

Through the New York Times, the St. Louis Post Dispatch and associated newspapers, Commander Byrd sent the following message to Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur:

"We have reached today the great mysterious ice barrier. It presents to us an ice cliff higher than the mast of the ship. On this Christmas day, we are thankful and proud to report that we have been able to carry the American flag several hundred miles farther south than it has ever been and it seems fitting that an airplane, that instrument of good will, should reach its farthest point south on Christmas day.

"We are 2,400 statute miles from the nearest human dwelling in the only area in the world where a ship can get so far from civilization. That we are here safely is due to providence and my loyal and stout-hearted shipmates, who have worked together unselfishly as a unit. It will probably be some days before we get ashore on account of ice that will be in the Bay of Whales."

"Byrd."

Beyond the ice barrier is a vast region of ice and eternal snow covering millions of square miles which are virtually unexplored. Leaders of several expeditions to the North Pole agree that only a great sea, mostly covered with ice, stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, while South Polar explorers agree that the South Pole is located on a great continent, containing ranges of mountains in some cases 10,000 feet high.

Equipped for a stay of two years in the frozen wastes, the Byrd expedition will endeavor to learn details regarding the unknown regions. Pictures will be taken from the four airplanes which the expedition carries and maps will be made of uncharted districts.

These unknown regions roughly follow a circle around the pole within or near the 70th degree of latitude south. From Whales Bay, where the Byrd expedition will establish its base for the greatest part of its command, there is a crudely sketched outline of previous explorations.

The Byrd expedition hopes to map great stretches of this territory and discover other reaches. Special geographical, geological and astronomical studies will be made by individual experts attached to the party of sixty-five. Commander Byrd hopes to be the first man to fly over the South Pole, although he was not the first to take an airplane into the frozen southern regions.

The British explorer Sir Hubert Wilkins has already made observations by airplane over the waste lands from his base at Deception Island, far on the other side of the Antarctic from Whales Bay.

INHABITANTS FLEE FROM EARTHQUAKE

SOFIA, Dec. 27.—Inhabitants of the cities of Borissograd and Tchirpan in eastern Rumelia, fled in panic to the countryside when an earthquake caused walls to crack and chimneys to collapse. The inhabitants are camped in the deep snow of the fields, fearing to return to their homes.

IS MADE JUDGE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Governor Vic Donahey announced the appointment of John W. Winn, Toledo attorney, as judge of the Toledo municipal court.

Winn is the son of the late John W. Winn of Defiance, former member of the state legislature and author of the Winn law which prohibited the sale of liquor in houses of doubtful repute.

Witnesses said gates guarding the crossing were not down. Joseph Boharty, watchman at the crossing, was taken into custody for questioning by the Oak Park police.

HUGE WAR GAME PLANNED

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 27.—An undetermined number of passengers were injured today when an east bound Santa Fe passenger train was wrecked at Heapleria, twenty-five miles north of here.

Seven cars left the rails and three of them, including two sleepers, plunged down a twelve-foot embankment.

HELDMAN ATTORNEY HOPES PUBLIC WILL SUSPEND JUDGMENT

Says Friends Sure Jury Will Free Canton Suspect

CANTON, O., Dec. 27.—Frank N. Switzer, former prosecuting attorney and candidate for court of appeals judge last November, today asked the Canton public to withhold judgment against Wilbur Heldman, Lorain furnace salesman, until the grand jury has completed investigation of the death of his pretty wife, Margaret, 21.

Switzer announced that he had been retained as Heldman's attorney. Heldman is held under $25,000 bond as a coroner's witness in the death of his wife, who, he said, killed herself with the same gun she used to slay Vernard Fearn, Waco coal dealer.

"While his relatives and friends have no doubt that the grand jury will entirely absolve Heldman of all suspicion in connection with the death of his wife," Switzer said, "they feel he is entitled to have judgment suspended until the final conclusions are announced by the authorities."

There was a growing possibility today that if Heldman makes moves to seek freedom from the county jail before the grand jury convenes Jan. 7, a formal affidavit against him may be withheld, Coroner T. C. McQuate said. In that event the case will go before the grand jury "on information." Dr. McQuate said, without the formality of a preliminary charge.

CICERO MAYOR FOILS PLOT TO BLOW UP HOUSE

Woman Is Suspect In Bombing Attempt In Suburb

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Police in Cicero, a "village" of 70,000 persons on the west side of Chicago, hunted a woman today in an attempt to solve the attempt to murder Mayor Klenha and his family of three by placing twelve sticks of dynamite on his front porch.

The fuse had burned to within a fraction of an inch of the dynamite when Klenha found the bomb.

First intimation that a woman was responsible for the attempt on Klenha's life came in a telephone call from a man who named the woman to the mayor. Investigation tended to substantiate the information.

Municipal transactions, the nature of which was not revealed, between Mayor Klenha and Edward Carmody, city attorney and a third person were blamed for the bomb plot. The third person, whose name was not made known, was said to have believed himself wronged in the transaction and threatened the lives of Klenha and his family.

The woman, brought into the investigation by the mysterious telephone call, is a resident of a northwest suburb, Carmody said and it was she who supplied the dynamite.

WIFE OF MILLS NEARLY WON DURANT PRIZE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—While both criticism and praise of Major Chester P. Mills' plan to enforce prohibition continued, it was revealed today that his wife almost won the $25,000 first prize.

Mrs. former federal prohibition administrator for the New York district, won the prize offered by W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, for the best plan to enforce the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Today the Durant committee revealed that Mrs. Mills' plan was one of half a dozen from which judges decided to select the winner. Mills, the members of the committee said, considers his wife's plan superior to his own.

In her plan, Mrs. Mills calls for education of communities to the necessity of co-operation with federal officials in the enforcing of prohibition. She also urges:

TROOPS WILL TOUCH GREENE COUNTY IN MIMIC MANEUVERS

Army's Right Flank To Be Located At Yellow Springs

FORT HAYES, COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Fort Hayes and southwestern Ohio will be the site of a war game on January 7th, 15th, 21st and 28th, Major General Dennis E. Nolan, commandant of the Fifth Corps Area, announced today.

Regular army reserves and Ohio National Guardsmen will participate, Gen. Nolan said, and the game will precede the air corps-ground maneuvers which are to be held in May between Wright Field, Dayton, and Norton Field, Columbus.

The game will be played under actual combat conditions, involving a combined ground and air problem.

On one side will be the blue army and on the other the red army.

"The opening of the game will find two hostile states separated by an imaginary boundary line running two miles west of Toledo, Bowling Green, Findlay, Kenton, London, Washington C. H., Hillsboro and Manchester," Maj. Nolan said.

"The blue state," he continued, "is to be to the west of this line and the red state of which Columbus will be the capital, will be to the east. The red army is charged with defense of the capital."

General Nolan, commanding the blue army, faces the task of concentrating his army and advancing to the attack of the red army, with the apparent intention of capturing Columbus.

His staff must plan and execute operations, move, supply and shelter "400,000 troops" and concentrate them in the area around Mechanicsburg, Urbana, Springfield, Yellow Springs and South Charleston, preparatory to advance and attack.

General Nolan will be assumed to have three corps and three extra divisions, totalling twelve divisions, and a provisional cavalry corps augmented by one-sixth of the general headquarters units or an aggregate of 400,000 men.

These will include the first corps under the command of Brig. Gen. George H. Jamerson, now commanding Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis; Col. Grosvenor Townsend and regular army officers on duty at Ohio State, representing the fifth division; Major General Benson W. Hough, representing the sixteenth division and the Ohio National Guard unit which will participate; Col. Orville P. Townsend and regular army and reserve officers of the eighty-third division; Col. Leon L. Roach, Huntington, W. Va., and regular army and reserve officers representing the 100th division; Lieut. Col. R. E. Harris, commanding the first provisional cavalry corps.

The game will be repeated at Fort Benjamin Harrison in February with the eighty-fourth, fifth and thirty-eighth divisions participating.

TABLET FOR AL

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 27.—A petition was circulated among state capitol employees today asking for contributions to a fund for a bronze tablet in the new state office building here in honor of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

The tablet, the petition states, would memorialize Gov. Smith's four terms as governor.

Closer control of the withdrawal of sacramental wines.

Criticism of Mills' prize-winning plan came chiefly from prohibition enforcement officers here and in Washington.

TWO SHIPS IN DANGER OFF THE COAST OF ALASKA; HELP IS SENT

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 27.—Fears for the safety of the crews of two crippled ships whose crews were battling Pacific gales off the coast of Alaska, increased when it was learned here that the steamer Starr was drifting helplessly toward a dangerous reef, and that the tug Roosevelt was in imminent danger in the Gulf of Alaska.

A dropping barometer and freezing temperatures added to the hardships of the sixteen members of the Roosevelt's crew and the twenty-three seamen aboard the Starr.

The coast guard cutter Unalga was reported proceeding from Juneau at full speed to the assistance of the stricken vessels. The steamer Northwestern was reported standing by the Starr, pumping oil on the waters, and with lifeboats ready to take off the crew should the Starr founder.

Feeble radio communication prevented establishment of full details.

Two weeks ago the Starr went aground off Dark Island and the Roosevelt was dispatched to the rescue by William Calvert, Jr., head of the San Juan Fishing Co., owner of both vessels.

The Roosevelt, as on the way to Seattle with the Starr in tow when the line parted in a heavy gale, and both vessels were swept toward dangerous reefs.

CHICAGO GANG LEADER SLAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Invasion of Chicago by an eastern gang of desperadoes was believed frustrated today after Frank Orlando, head of a bandit band that operated in Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia, had been shot to death in a spectacular pistol battle in a crowded furniture store.

Orlando and three other gunmen had robbed a restaurant and were fleeing with $500 when the leader was trapped in the store and killed by Sgt. Joseph Starshak. Policeman David Griffin was wounded. The other three robbers escaped.

The dead bandit was identified as Orlando by descriptions that had been sent here warning the police that the gang was headed toward Chicago.

Orlando is wanted in Newark for murder and a series of garage hold-ups, according to Capt. John Prendergast, who also said that a reward of $5,000 for his capture had been posted.

PRESIDENT-ELECT RETURNING HOME TO ANSWER PROBLEMS

Friends Aroused By Move For Relief At Short Session

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—President-elect Herbert Hoover cut short his South American visit and is returning to the United States because his friends here were dissatisfied with the way things are going. They were particularly aroused because of the activities of congressional leaders who are beginning to fight over when farm relief and tariff legislation is to be enacted, whether and when a special session of congress is to be called by the new president, and appointments.

Hoover plans to remain in Washington a week or ten days before he goes to Miami. His friends believe the affairs could not be settled by telephone or telegraph and that Hoover's presence was absolutely necessary.

The first problem which will be put to Hoover will be the question of whether he wants farm relief legislation enacted now or whether he desires to call a special session of congress after his inauguration.

President Coolidge has communicated to congress privately his desire for immediate passage of farm legislation. The farm bloc is reluctant to follow these instructions. Its members want to wait until the special session is called, believing Hoover will sign a more satisfactory measure from their point of view.

The diverging congressional groups want a definite statement from Hoover as to whether he intends to call a special session and if so, when. This question involves the whole course of program of the present congress. For instance, if Hoover desires to avoid a special session, he would want farm legislation passed now and tariff revision deferred until next December.

The senate group contesting the nomination of Secretary of Interior Roy O. West wants to know also whether Hoover intends to reappoint the secretary.

House leaders plan to call on Hoover as soon as he returns here to obtain his farm relief program. Hoover is expected to confer with President Coolidge and then advise the farm bloc of the administration's attitude and his own desires.

With Secretary of Agriculture Jardine urging immediate passage of the new McNary bill, house leaders admit they are perplexed on how to handle the agriculture problem. They do not want to appear to be opposing Jardine, who is believed to be representing the president's view but at the same time they feel Hoover with his campaign pledges to fulfill, should be consulted before any action is taken.

Hoover, it was pointed out, could be held responsible for farm relief no matter when legislation is enacted and he should have a free hand to appoint members of the federal farm board.

DRUNKEN AUTOISTS TARGET OF NEW BILL

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 27.—Revocation of rights to drive an automobile anywhere within the state will be the penalty facing careless or intoxicated auto drivers if the legislature passes the auto drivers' license law written by Municipal Judge Lee E. Skeel and H. H. Gorman of Cleveland. State Senator George H. Bender, chairman of Cuyahoga County delegation, predicted today that the bill will pass, and Laurence H. Norton, state representative, agreed.

Norton last year introduced a similar bill in the lower house, but it was defeated by three votes. Judge Skeel and Gorman, who is chairman of the executive committee of the state safety council, collaborated in the preparation of it.

A minimum driving age of fourteen met the opposition of rural legislators. The age limit has not been specified in the new bill.

GOVERNOR PARDONS SICK PRISONER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Governor Vic Donahey has pardoned one state penitentiary prisoner and commuted the sentences to two others to expire on a date fixed by the state board of clemency.

The man pardoned was William Myers, serving a 2 to 7 year sentence from Delaware, for burglary. Warden Thomas said he is in immediate danger of death from heart disease.

Those receiving commutations were Joe Gray and Charles Reeves of Akron, serving terms for highway robbery.

It will probably be some days before we get ashore on account of ice that will be in the Bay of Whales."

Beyond the ice barrier is a vast region of ice and eternal snow covering millions of square miles which are virtually unexplored.

Leaders of several expeditions to the North Pole agree that only a great sea, mostly covered with ice stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, while South Polar explorers agree that the South Pole is located on a great continent, containing ranges of mountains in some cases 10,000 feet high.

Equipped for a stay of two years in the frozen wastes, the Byrd expedition will endeavor to learn details regarding the unknown regions. Pictures will be taken from the four airplanes which the expedition carries and maps will be made of uncharted districts.

These unknown regions roughly follow a circle around the pole within or near the 70th degree of latitude south. From Whales Bay, where the Byrd expedition will establish its base for the greatest adventure of its commander, there is a crudely sketched outline of previous explorations.

The Byrd expedition hopes to map great stretches of this territory and discover other reaches. Special geographical, geological and astronomical studies will be made by individual experts attached to the party of sixty-five.

Commander Byrd hopes to be the first man to fly over the South Pole, although he was not the first to take an airplane into the frozen southern regions.

The British explorer Sir Hubert Wilkins has already made observations by airplane over the waste lands from his base at Deception Island, far on the other side of the Antarctic from Whales Bay.

INHABITANTS FLEE FROM EARTHQUAKE

SOFIA, Dec. 27.—Inhabitants of the cities of Borissograd and Tschirpan in eastern Rumania, fled in panic to the countryside when an earthquake caused walls to crack and chimneys to collapse today. The inhabitants are camped in the deep snow of the fields, fearing to return to their homes.

IS MADE JUDGE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Governor Vic Donahey announced the appointment of John W. Winn, Toledo attorney, as judge of the Toledo municipal court.

Winn is the son of the late John W. Winn of Defiance, former member of the state legislature and author of the Winn law which prohibited the sale of liquor in houses of doubtful repute.

HUGE WAR GAME PLANNED

BELIEVE MANY HURT IN WRECK

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 27.—An undetermined number of passengers were injured today when an east bound Santa Fe passenger train was wrecked at Hesperia, seventy-five miles north of here.

Seven cars left the rails and three of them, including two sleepers, plunged down a twelve-foot embankment.

HELDMAN ATTORNEY HOPES PUBLIC WILL SUSPEND JUDGMENT

Says Friends Sure Jury Will Free Canton Suspect

CANTON, O., Dec. 27.—Frank N. Sweitzer, former prosecuting attorney and candidate for court of appeals judge last November, today asked the Canton public to withhold judgment against Wilbur Heldman, Lorain furnace salesman until the grand jury has completed investigation of the death of his prey wife, Margaret, 21.

Sweitzer announced that he had been retained as Heldman's attorney. Heldman is held under $25,000 bond as a coroner's witness in the death of his wife, who, he said, killed herself with the same gun she used to slay Vernard Fearn, Waco coal dealer.

"While his relatives and friends have no doubt that the grand jury will entirely absolve Heldman of all suspicion in connection with the death of his wife," Sweitzer said, "they feel he is entitled to have judgment suspended until the final conclusions are announced by the authorities."

There was a growing possibility today that if Heldman makes no move to seek freedom from the county jail before the grand jury convenes Jan. 7, a formal affidavit against him may be withheld.

General Nolan, commanding the blue army, faces the task of concentrating his army and advancing to the attack of the red army, with the apparent intention of capturing Columbus.

His staff must plan and execute operations, move, supply and shelter "400,000 troops" and concentrate them in the area around Mechanicsburg, Urbana, Springfield, Yellow Springs and South Charleston, preparatory to advance and attack.

General Nolan will be assumed to have three corps and three extra divisions, totalling twelve divisions, and a provisional cavalry corps augmented by one-sixth of the general headquarters units or an aggregate of 400,000 men.

These will include the first corps under the command of Brig. Gen. George H. Jamerson, now commanding Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis; Col. Grosvenor Townsend and regular army officers on duty at Ohio State, representing the fifth division; Major General Benson W. Hough, representing the thirty-seventh division and the Ohio National Guard unit which will participate; Col. Orville P. Townsend and regular army and reserve officers of the eighty-third division; Col. Leon L. Roach, Huntington, W. Va., and regular army and reserve officers representing the 100th division; Lieut. Col. R. E. Harris, commanding the first provisional cavalry corps.

The game will be repeated at Fort Benjamin Harrison in February with the eighty-fourth, fifth and thirty-eighth divisions participating.

CICERO MAYOR FOILS PLOT TO BLOW UP HOUSE

Woman Is Suspect In Bombing Attempt In Suburb

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Police in Cicero, a "village" of 70,000 persons on the west side of Chicago, hunted a woman today in an attempt to solve the attempt to murder Mayor Klenha and his family of three by placing twelve sticks of dynamite on his front porch.

The fuse had burned to within a fraction of an inch of the dynamite when Klenha found the bomb.

First intimation that a woman was responsible for the attempt on Klenha's life came in a telephone call from a man who named the woman to the mayor. Investigation tended to substantiate the information.

Municipal transactions, the nature of which was not revealed, between Mayor Klenha and Edward Carmody, city attorney and a third person were blamed for the bomb plot. The third person, whose name was not made known, was said to have believed himself wronged in the transaction and threatened the lives of Klenha and his family.

The woman, brought into the investigation by the mysterious telephone call, is a resident of a northwest suburb, Carmody said and it was she who supplied the dynamite.

TROOPS WILL TOUCH GREENE COUNTY IN MIMIC MANEUVERS

Army's Right Flank To Be Located At Yellow Springs

FORT HAYES, COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Fort Hayes and southwestern Ohio will be the site of a war game on January 7th, 15th, 21st and 28th, Major General Dennis E. Nolan, commandant of the Fifth Corps Area, announced today.

Regular army reserves and Ohio National Guardsmen will participate, Gen. Nolan said, and the game will precede the air corps-ground maneuvers which are to be held in May between Wright Field, Dayton, and Norton Field, Columbus.

The game will be played under actual combat conditions, involving a combined ground and air problem.

On one side will be the blue army and on the other the red army.

"The opening of the game will find two hostile states separated by an imaginary boundary line running two miles west of Toledo, Bowling Green, Findlay, Kenton, London, Washington, C. H., Hillsboro and Manchester," Maj. Nolan said.

"The blue state," he continued, "is to be to the west of this line and the red state of which Columbus will be the capital, will be to the east. The red army is charged with defense of the capital."

General Nolan, commanding the blue army, faces the task of concentrating his army and advancing to the attack of the red army, with the apparent intention of capturing Columbus.

His staff must plan and execute operations, move, supply and shelter "400,000 troops" and concentrate them in the area around Mechanicsburg, Urbana, Springfield, Yellow Springs and South Charleston, preparatory to advance and attack.

General Nolan will be assumed to have three corps and three extra divisions, totalling twelve divisions, and a provisional cavalry corps augmented by one-sixth of the general headquarters units or an aggregate of 400,000 men.

The game will be repeated at Fort Benjamin Harrison in February with the eighty-fourth, fifth and thirty-eighth divisions participating.

WIFE OF MILLS NEARLY WON DURANT PRIZE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—While both criticism and praise of Major Chester P. Mills' plan to enforce prohibition continued, it was revealed today that his wife almost won the $25,000 first prize.

Mrs. Mills, former federal prohibition administrator for the New York district, won the prize offered by W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, for the best plan to enforce the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Today the Durant committee revealed that Mrs. Mills' plan was one of half a dozen from which the judges decided to select the winner. Mills, the members of the committee said, considers his wife's plan superior to his own.

In her plan, Mrs. Mills calls for education of communities to the necessity of co-operation with federal officials in the enforcing of prohibition. She also urges:

More and better federal judges. More careful selection of prohibition agents.

Large bonds for manufacturers producing or handling alcohol. Additional treaties with foreign countries to stop the international flow of liquor.

Closer control of the withdrawal of sacramental wines.

Criticism of Mills' prize-winning plan came chiefly from prohibition enforcement officers here and in Washington.

Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran was quoted as saying Mills "had simply exchanged an old idea for new money" and that many phases of his plan were "historical."

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said many of Mills' suggestions were valuable, but that they dealt only with a minor phase of the problem.

Salvation Head Faces Changes

TWO SHIPS IN DANGER OFF THE COAST OF ALASKA; HELP IS SENT

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 27.—Fears for the safety of the crews of two crippled ships whose crews were battling Pacific gales off the coast of Alaska, increased when it was learned here that the steamer Starr was drifting helplessly toward a dangerous reef, and that the tug Roosevelt was in imminent danger in the Gulf of Alaska.

A dropping barometer and freezing temperatures added to the hardships of the sixteen members of the Roosevelt's crew and the twenty-three seamen aboard the Starr.

The coast guard cutter Unalga was reported proceeding from Juneau at full speed to the assistance of the stricken vessels. The steamer Northwestern was reported standing by the Starr, pumping oil on the waters, and with lifeboats ready to take off the crew should the Starr founder.

Feeble radio communication prevented establishment of full details.

Two weeks ago the Starr went aground off Dark Island and the Roosevelt was dispatched to the rescue by William Calver, Jr., head of the San Juan Fishing Co., owner of both vessels.

The Roosevelt was on the way to Seattle with the Starr in tow when the line parted in a heavy gale, and both vessels were swept toward dangerous reefs.

Chicago Gang Leader Slain

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Invasion of Chicago by an eastern gang of desperadoes was believed frustrated today after "Frank" Orlando, head of a bandit band that operated in Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia, had been shot to death in a spectacular pistol battle in a crowded furniture store.

Orlando and three other gunmen had robbed a restaurant and were fleeing with $500 when the leader was trapped in the store and killed by Sgt. Joseph Starshak. Policeman David Griffin was wounded. The other three robbers escaped.

The dead bandit was identified as Orlando by descriptions that had been sent here warning the police that the gang was headed toward Chicago.

Orlando was wanted in Newark for murder and a series of garage hold-ups, according to Capt. John Pendergast, who also said that a reward of $5,000 for his capture had been posted.

ATTORNEY DIES
CLEVELAND, Dec. 27.—Wilbur D. Wilkin, 51, one of Cleveland's best known attorneys, is dead here, the victim of a heart attack.

PRESIDENT-ELECT RETURNING HOME TO ANSWER PROBLEMS

Friends Aroused By Move For Relief At Short Session

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—President-elect Herbert Hoover cut short his South American visit and is returning to the United States because his friends here were dissatisfied with the way things are going. They were particularly aroused because of the activities of congressional leaders who are beginning to fight over when farm relief and tariff legislation is to be enacted, whether and when a special session of congress is to be called by the new president, and appointments.

Hoover plans to remain in Washington a week or ten days before he goes to Miami. His friends believe the affairs could not be settled by telephone or telegraph and that Hoover's presence was absolutely necessary.

The first problem which will be put to Hoover will be the question of whether he wants farm relief legislation enacted now or whether he desires to call a special session of congress after his inauguration.

President Coolidge has communicated to congress privately his desire for immediate passage of farm legislation. The farm bloc is reluctant to follow these instructions. Its members want to wait until the special session is called, believing Hoover will sign a more satisfactory measure from their point of view.

The diverging congressional groups want a definite statement from Hoover as to whether he intends to call a special session and if so, when. This question involves the whole course of program of the present congress. For instance if Hoover desires to avoid a special session, he would want farm legislation passed now and tariff revision deferred until next December.

The senate group contesting the nomination of Secretary of Interior Roy O. West wants to know also whether Hoover intends to reappoint the secretary.

House farm leaders plan to call on Hoover as soon as he returns here to obtain his farm relief program. Hoover is expected to confer with President Coolidge and then advise the farm bloc of the administration's attitude and his own desires.

With Secretary of Agriculture Jardine urging immediate passage of the new McNary bill, house leaders admit they are perplexed on how to handle the agriculture problem. They do not want to appear to be opposing Jardine, who is believed to be representing the president's view, but at the same time they feel Hoover with his campaign pledges to fulfill, should be consulted before any action is taken.

Hoover, it was pointed out, could be held responsible for farm relief no matter when legislation is enacted and he should have a free hand to appoint members of the federal farm board.

DRUNKEN AUTOISTS TARGET OF NEW BILL

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 27.—Revocation of rights to drive an automobile anywhere within the state will be the penalty facing careless or intoxicated auto drivers if the legislature passes a law written by Municipal Judge Lee E. Skeel and H. H. Gorman of Cleveland.

State Senator George H. Bender, chairman of Cuyahoga County delegation, predicted today that the bill will pass, and Laurence H. Norton, state representative, agreed.

Norton last year introduced a similar bill in the lower house, but it was defeated by three votes. Judge Skeel and Gorman, who is chairman of the executive committee of the state safety council, collaborated in the preparation of it.

A minimum driving age of fourteen met the opposition of rural legislators. The age limit has not been specified in the new bill.

GOVERNOR PARDONS SICK PRISONER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Governor Vic Donahey has pardoned one state penitentiary prisoner and commuted the sentences to two others to expire on a date fixed by the state board of clemency.

The man pardoned was William Myers, serving a 2 to 7 year sentence from Delaware, for burglary. Warden Thomas said he is in immediate danger of death from heart disease.

Those receiving commutations were Joe Gray and Charles Reevs of Akron, serving terms for highway robbery.

DAMAGE SUIT BEING TRIED THURSDAY IN COURT; ASKS $5,075

Jury trial of the $5,075 damage suit filed against Harold Jordan by Robert L. Watson, New Burlington Pike, based on permanent injuries he alleges he sustained when his horse and buggy was struck by an auto driven by the defendant November 5, 1926, began in Common Pleas Court Thursday morning.

Watson seeks to be awarded $5,000 damages for personal injuries suffered when he was thrown from the buggy, to be reimbursed for $25 spent for medical treatment and restitution for the destruction of the buggy, reasonably valued at $50.

The accident occurred near Watson's home. The plaintiff claims he displayed a light on the buggy and that he had pulled entirely over on the grassy part of the road, leaving Jordan three-fourths of the roadway for him to pass in his auto.

Jordan is charged with negligence, driving at an excessive rate of speed and on the wrong side of the road.

For Colds -

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

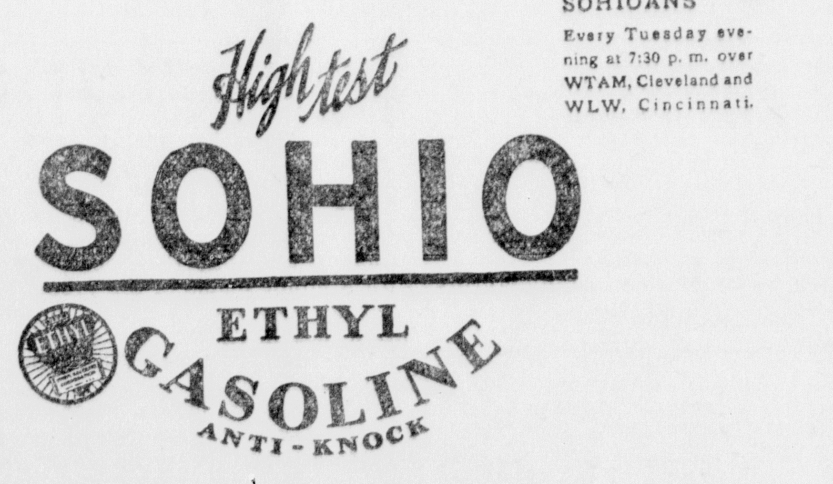

DECEMBER MORNINGS!

Deep snow, and a crisp crust... white maelstroms of swirling, stinging biting iciness... threatening gray clouds... Indoors; coziness... snug, warm comfort... The doctor buttons his great-coat and pulls a fur cap over his ears... shivers... starts for the garage... Duty to be served... what price comfort?... the wind whistles maliciously... bites... stings... Inside the garage it's different. A comfortable, powerful, reliable car... "Summer Sunshine under the hood"... for instant starting... Cold Weather Sohio doing its share!

RED CROWN changed, too

Following our established practice, Red Crown is also refined to special cold-weather standards. Its volatility is increased to insure easy starting and satisfactory winter motor performance.

For Colds -

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monachia (Germany) of Saliicylicacid

COMMISSIONER S APPROVE 1929 APPROPRIATIONS FOR COUNTY

General appropriation for Greene County for 1929, including $192,555.32, estimated running expense in the general county fund, has been approved by County Commissioners.

Classifying estimated receipts and expenditures in the general fund next year, commissioners figure that total receipts will be approximately $194,100, including a treasury balance of $2,100 January 1, 1929; $162,000 derived from general taxation and $30,000, income from fees and other sources of revenue.

The amount appropriated in this fund is $192,555.32, leaving an unappropriated balance of $1,544.68. Commissioners appropriated $62,560 for the county road fund, based on estimated receipts of $68,000 and

$1,000 a Day

An $18-a-week reporter a year ago, Phillip Matthiessen Chalmers, 21, of Chicago, is now wondering how he is going to spend his income of $1,000 a day which he will derive from the $6,000,000 estate left him by his grandfather, F. W. Matthiessen, of La Salle, Ill., which he has just inherited.

leaving a balance of $5,440, unappropriated. Receipts anticipated by commissioners in this fund include a balance of $500 at the beginning of next year, $65,000 from the county road tax levy and $2,500 from other incomes.

In the road maintenance and repair fund $35,000 has been appropriated, figures on the basis of receipts estimated at $12,500. This would leave a balance of $7,250. A balance of $2,500 is expected to exist at the start of 1929 and the expected income from gasoline and automobile license tax is placed at $40,000.

Commissioners have also set aside $10,500 as the county library levy, $1,750 for county district health and an item of $60,000 for construction and repair of bridges and roads. These expenditures are not included in the general fund appropriation.

The largest item in the general fund appropriation is $77,210 for charity, including the County Children's Home, County Infirmary, expense of county inmates in state institutions, soldier's relief, mothers' pensions and tuberculosis patients.

The county will spend $11,450 for agricultural purposes, including $6,700 for the fair board, $250 for the farmer's institute, $1,500, representing one-half of the county agent's salary; $3,000 for cattle tuberculosis test work and $3,420 for miscellaneous agricultural work.

The estimated cost of appraisal of both real and personal property is placed at $4,900 for next year. Legal advertising is expected to cost $2,200. For election expense, $5,646 has been appropriated.

The general executive cost estimate, including salaries and expenses of the auditor, treasurer, recorder, prosecutor, county commissioners, county school examiner, registrar of vital statistics, law librarian and county board of visitors together with their deputies and incidental office expense, is placed at $38,191.32. For judicial court, covering Common Pleas Court, Clerk of Courts, Justices and the coroner and sheriff, $37,320 has been appropriated for next year.

Commissioners also appropriated in the same fund $6,438 for the surveyor's office and $27,088 for buildings and grounds.

It is pointed out that the 1929 appropriation is practically identical with that of 1928.

Help Check Influenza!

Local People Urged to Help Prevent Epidemic Spreading

Eat Wisely, Exercise Regularly, Keep Away From Crowded Places and Treat All Colds Promptly

Medical authorities now agree that influenza is a germ disease—most commonly spread by breathing in the germs. If the system is in good shape—the membrane of the air passages in a healthy condition—these germs do not usually breed. It is only when the bodily resistance is lowered that the germs do the most harm.

Start Protective Treatment at Once

Right now while influenza is so prevalent every precaution should be taken to protect the air passages. When you feel one of these "Flu Colds" coming on don't wait; start the following treatment at once:

Get a jar of Vicks VapoRub and place some up each nostril, or melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its medicated vapors. This helps to keep the air passages in a healthy condition, thus making it difficult for the germs to breed.

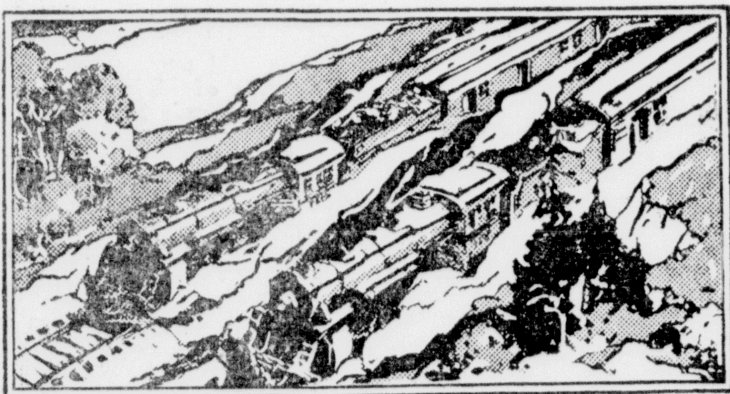

At bedtime take a laxative, if you are constipated, and rub Vicks VapoRub on the throat and chest. Vicks medicated vapors are then released by the heat of the body, and breathed in all night long, direct to the air passages. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like an old fashioned poultice, drawing out tightness and pain and helping the vapors to break up the congestion. If you feel feverish call a physician.

Avoid Crowds and Use Vicks Freely

It is best to keep away from sneezers and coughers in street cars and public places. If you must go out in crowded places insert some Vicks up each nostril before starting out. On returning home melt some Vicks in hot water and inhale the vapors. This is a simple precaution which everyone should take to prevent the flu spreading as it did in 1918 when millions of lives were lost.

COMMISSIONERS APPROVE 1929 APPROPRIATIONS FOR COUNTY

General appropriation for Greene County for 1929, including $192,555.32, estimated running expense in the general county fund, has been approved by County Commissioners.

Classifying estimated receipts and expenditures in the general fund next year, commissioners figure that total receipts will be approximately $194,100, including a treasury balance of $2,100 January 1, 1929; $162,000 derived from general taxation and $30,000, income from fees and other sources of revenue.

The amount appropriated in this fund is $192,555.32, leaving an unappropriated balance of $1,544.68. Commissioners appropriated $22,560 for the county road fund, based on estimated receipts of $68,000 and

$1,000 a Day

An $18-a-week reporter a year ago, Phillip Matthiessen Challenger, 21, of Chicago, is now wondering how he is going to spend his income of $1,000 a day which he will derive from the $6,000,000 estate left him by his grandfather, F. W. Matthiessen, of La Salle, Ill., which he has just inherited.

leaving a balance of $5,440, unappropriated. Receipts anticipated by commissioners in this fund include a balance of $500 at the beginning of next year, $65,000 from the county road tax levy and $2,500 from other incomes.

In the road maintenance and repair fund $35,000 has been appropriated, figures on the basis of receipts estimated at $42,500. This would leave a balance of $7,250. A balance of $2,500 is expected to exist at the start of 1929 and the expected income from gasoline and automobile license tax is placed at $40,000.

Commissioners have also set aside $10,500 as the county library levy, $4,750 for county district health and an item of $60,000 for construction and repair of bridges and roads. These expenditures are not included in the general fund appropriation.

The largest item in the general fund appropriation is $77,210 for charity, including the County Children's Home, County Infirmary, expense of county inmates in state institutions, soldier's relief, mothers' pensions and tuberculosis patients.

The county will spend $11,450 for agricultural purposes, including $6,700 for the fair board, $250 for the farmer's institute, $1,500 representing one-half of the county agent's salary; $2,000 for cattle tuberculosis test work and $3,420 for miscellaneous agricultural work.

The estimated cost of appraisal of both real and personal property is placed at $4,900 for next year. Legal advertising is expected to cost $2,200. For election expense, $5,646 has been appropriated.

The general executive cost estimate, including salaries and expenses of the auditor, treasurer, recorder, prosecutor, county commissioners, county school examiner, registrar of vital statistics, law librarian and county board of visitors together with their deputies and incidental office expense, is placed at $38,191.32. For judicial work, covering Common Pleas Court, Clerk of Courts, Justices and the coroner and sheriff, $37,320 has been appropriated for next year.

Commissioners also appropriated in the same fund $6,438 for the surveyor's office and $27,088 for buildings and grounds.

It is pointed out that the 1929 appropriation is practically identical with that of 1928.

Mrs. Mary J. Collins, of New York City, has instituted a breach of promise suit for $250,000 against Dr. Daniel Carl Mitchell, noted geologist, and former college president. Mrs. Collins declared the trouble began when she registered at a Chicago hotel the doctor didn't like.

TOTAL TAX REFUNDS OVER 142 MILLIONS TREASURY REPORTS

More Than 168,500 Claims Approved By Department

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Federal tax refunds totalling $142,393,567.17 given to taxpayers in the fiscal year 1928 were announced in detail to congress by the treasury today.

More than 168,500 claims for refunds, made necessary through erroneous returns and assessments and legal decisions, were approved by the treasury in the 12-month period ended last June 30, and the first transmitted by the treasury today comprised all those of more than $500.

The largest amount listed in these "Christmas announcements" was $6,213,808, refunded to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Another tobacco company, the American Tobacco Company and subsidiaries, which pay taxes in New York, received the next largest refund, $4,271,290.

Other refunds of more than a million dollars included: Swift and Co., Chicago, $1,496,650; Estate of Margaret Olivia Sage, New York, $1,018,333; The Texas Company, Houston, Tex., $1,336,597; Federal Shipbuilding Company, Kearney, N. Help Check Influenza!

Local People Urged to Help Prevent Epidemic Spreading

Eat Wisely, Exercise Regularly, Keep Away From Crowded Places and Treat All Colds Promptly

Medical authorities now agree that influenza is a germ disease—most commonly spread by breathing in the germs. If the system is in good shape—the membrane of the air passages in a healthy condition—these germs do not usually breed. It is only when the bodily resistance is lowered that the germs do the most harm.

Start Protective Treatment at Once

Right now while influenza is so prevalent every precaution should be taken to protect the air passages. When you feel one of these "Flu Colds" coming on don't wait; start the following treatment at once:

Get a jar of Vicks VapoRub and place some up each nostril, or melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its medicated vapors. This helps to keep the air passages in a healthy condition, thus making it difficult for the germs to breed.

At bedtime take a laxative, if you are constipated, and rub Vicks VapoRub on the throat and chest. Vicks medicated vapors are then released by the heat of the body, and breathed in all night long, direct to the air passages. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like an old fashioned poultice, drawing out tightness and pain and helping the vapors to break up the congestion. If you feel feverish call a physician.

Avoid Crowds and Use Vicks Freely

It is best to keep away from sneezers and coughers in street cars and public places. If you must go out in crowded places insert some Vicks up each nostril before starting out. On returning home melt some Vicks in hot water and inhale the vapors. This is a simple precaution which everyone should take to prevent the flu spreading as it did in 1918 when millions of lives were lost.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PLACE GOD DWELLETH—For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.—Isa. 57:15.

HAS NERVE, ANYWAY

The city of Philadelphia is considering placing a memorial tablet in its city hall to honor Brigadier General Smedley Butler, once head of its police force.

General Butler, you remember, went to Philadelphia to have a free hand in wiping out graft, ending crime and cleaning up a deplorable vice situation. The city's politicians stood for his honest, energetic efforts about so long—and then they got him thrown out on his ear.

You also remember, doubtless, what has happened since. A third of the police department's high officers have been dismissed under charges. Revelations of graft and corruption that would shock even Chicago have been made. One of the most odorous messes in the history of American municipalities has been uncovered.

Offhand, one would hardly think that Philadelphia's city officials would have the gall to put up a tablet of General Butler right now.

A PASTOR'S OPTIMISM

If you have a dour feeling that the optimist is usually left holding the bag, hark to the experience of the Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, pastor of the First Christian church of Ardmore, Okla.

A matter of a decade ago the Rev. Brooks came to this church as pastor. He helped the deacons draw up a budget for the year, and then suggested that instead of giving him a regular salary the church, at the end of the year, simply give him whatever surplus funds were left after all other bills were met. He was optimistic enough to believe that this would work.

As it happens, it has worked beautifully. The Rev. Brooks still holds that pulpit and is getting along nicely. The church has never yet failed to live within its budget—something rather unusual, for any organization—and the ministers optimism has been justified by the results.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

The season in which ones thoughts turn to Christmas trees is just about upon us. And so much has been written about forest conservation recently that many people feel that cutting down young fir trees for Christmas constitutes a needless drain upon our forests.

Such fears, however, are ungrounded. This comes on the authority of no less a person than Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, and a last-ditch defender of our forests if ever there was one.

The type of tree used for Christmas, says Pack, would not be worth a great deal even if it were allowed to mature in its nature setting. In addition, an ever-increasing proportion of Christmas trees comes from private forests that are restocked yearly, so that the supply is maintained constantly.

So go ahead and plan on having an old-fashioned tree—you can do it with a clear conscience.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

PARACHUTING

It begins to look as though flying would come to be the safest of all forms of travel. The earth is getting pretty thickly spread with one thing and another and it takes a lot of dodging to beat the incessant game. Comes now the invention of the Goliath of parachutes, 84 feet in diameter and capable of holding a whole airplane and some passengers aloft. Let something go wrong with the airplane of the near future and all the passengers can climb into the parachute and slip down to the nearest convenient pasture.

NERVE TO QUIT

B. E. Fulton established the flying field near Akron where the workshops of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation will be located. His dream of great dirigible-zeppelins in this country is coming true. An interesting thing to know about Fulton is that he quit his job some years ago to make his first flight. He believed in the future of lighter-than-air craft. He couldn't get the time off to experiment, so he gave up a regular place. Takes nerve to do that. A man must be sure he is right. Our lack of nerve to do that very thing, however, may make all the difference between success and failure.

CRADLE DAYS

The hush-a-bye days are gone forever. Two Toronto university teachers have been investigating the sleep habits of children. Few children pass into the land of nod to the soothing croon of a lullaby. And the cradle rocking age is past. Science has no regrets but the memories of old songs when the dark came down will linger.

We learn from these experienced sleep investigators that "sleeping in the daytime has no effect on the night sleep of infants, but too much daytime sleep interferes with the night rest of older children. Between the third and fourth year of life the child should not be permitted to sleep longer than about one and a half hours in the daytime. More than this not only interferes with night rest, but also deprives the child of fresh air and play activity that he needs."

SENTIMENT

There seems in this modern age to be a pretty general tendency to attach less importance to sentimental appeal and more to importance to a perfectly scientific or efficient approach. And to a considerable extent this is as it should be. But let's not lose all our perspective. Let's not get out of balance. The whole man is the normal man. He is a creature of sentiment and emotion as well as a creature of mind and muscle. Denying sentiment, denying tender emotions, is denying a part of ourselves. What we feel is important, as well as what we think.

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK — Among other things that make Chicago the various Main Stem luncheon places is the civil war now going on between Harry Johnson and his younger brother, Al Johnson. One of the theatrical weeklies contains a page at which reveals the professional jealousy that exists between the two, and it is a most repulsive advertisement. Harry Johnson shrieks his envy to the world and appears to hunger for some of the success enjoyed by Al, for he reprints clippings from provincial reviewers which argue that he is a better entertainer than his more successful kin. In fewer words, boys will be boys.

I Hollerwood

Take it from Len Hall, this repartee is supposed to have happened in the moon pitcher sector. A movie magnate who had received a complaint from the censor, Will Hays, summoned his staff and cried:

"We got to be careful, you hear? All right, let's have sex—but clean sex!"

Bands Across the Sea

Beth Challis, one of the better songwriters at the Rendezvous club, who just returned from Britain, brought the following clipping from the London Daily Express. It refers in part to the dinner in Gene Tunney's honor there a few months ago. "..... The King was toasted and the band played 'God Save the King.' Then the president of the United States was toasted, played 'Old Man River.'"

Gao

Take it from Lew Brown, the co-author of "Sonny Boy" and numerous other smash song hits, who avers he overheard the gab, one colored fellow met another, and said:

"Whatcher doin'?"

"Ah wor's wid eight fellers, an' Ah thinks they calls 'em a quartet.'"

"Have you made any money lately?"

"Well, we've only had one job so far. We fuz engaged fo' to play at a funeral, but when we got there the man he died daid yet, so we sang till he wuz'."

Incidentally

Lew Brown, financially, is almost in the seven-figure division, what with tremendous song and show royalties piling up daily. But a few years ago he was poor, you might say, giving away precious ditties for little return. One publisher finally presented him with a royalty check for $19,000, the first real money Brown almost had. A moment later, however, the publisher went that he was sorely in need of the $19,000, and if Brown would wait a while he would pay it back with 6 percent. Two days later the publisher went bankrupt.

In his rage, Brown yelled: "Wait and some day I'll be mightier than you are in this business!" Today Brown will tell you his temper got the better of him and that he really didn't mean those words.

But what we started out to say was that the entire floor of the building formerly occupied by the bankrupt publisher was recently purchased by the music firm of DeSylva, Brown & Henderson just to use as their shipping room!

Ain't We Got Fun?

For diversions of the locals are toying with what is said to be a new pastime. You ask your listener for a new dime. Placing the coin on a table, you cover the lower half of the card with the Union side of a E Pluribus Unum side with a card or a bit of paper. This reveals something resembling a fence, an overhanging tree, and the hood of a car. Which is the dialogue goes like this:

"Do you see the fence on the country road?"

The retort should be "Yes." Then: "See the tree with a Ford parked under it?"

The reply should be "Uh-huh." Then: "See the fellow and girl necking in the Ford?"

The reply will be: "Nope, I don't see anybody necking."

"Well," you say, as you pocket the coin, "what the hell do you want for a dime?"

Compliments should be addressed to the managing editor, not us.

Of All Things!

Speaking of rackets, a friend tells of a lad who is getting away with a stunt in the local hostelry. The fellow is homely, and employs his trick because it is a sure-fire way to meet women. After registering at a hotel he goes outside and telephones the place, asking for himself. The operator naturally reports that Mr. Soandso isn't in, "but will you leave a message?"

"Yes," Tell him," says the speaker, "that John Gilbert and Ramon Navarro are in town and to get in touch with them."

This gag is repeated for a few days, with the impression left on the phone girl that the guest is a big gun with the celebrated. As a rite, the phone operator spreads the news to her girl friends in the hotel, and introductions usually follow.

A few days afterward he checks out and repeats the racket to another hotel, invariably getting some of New York's prettiest and most gullible women, who fall harder than the "extras" in Hollywood who have been promised a screen test.

GUESS WHERE THE BLOW FALLS HARDEST

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Herbert Hoover has traveled so fast that his impressions of the people and places he has seen on his South American trip must be rather blurred.

South America getting tiresome? Yes, but how change the subject?—with Mr. Hoover still in that part of the world—and plots being discovered to blow him sky high—and Secretary Kellogg just done talking perpetual peace with the representatives of 19 Latin American republics—meanwhile hanging onto two of their numbing coats tails to keep them from flying to war.

Alas, dear reader! Never again can South America be the same closed book to us that it was before our president-elect started his whirlwind tour. Heretofore the volume open for fair, it interests him. He may make a read it from start to finish in the next four years.

However, I did mean to give it a rest for a while—until President Irigoyen of Argentina discovered that plot to bomb Mr. Hoover's train.

Really! That can hardly be ignored.

In general, Mr. Hoover's South American impressions must, indeed, be rather blurred.

But one exception ought to be made.

That our president-elect will bring back with him a clear-cut mental photograph of the personality of Hipolito Irigoyen is a pretty safe bet.

In the first place, to have a man frustrate a plot to blow you up is enough to impress him on your mind. Secondly, President Irigoyen is not an individual to meet and then forget—or mix up with anybody else.

Mr. Hoover's terms with South American public men unquestionably will be far closer than those of any president of the United States who ever has preceded him, and among Latin American public men President Irigoyen stands out as a unique character.

His administration and President

They may like or they may hate one another. In either case, in the calculations of any White House tenant who is deeply concerned in Pan-American relationships, Hipolito Irigoyen is sure to bulk big.

As rough as a nutmeg grater, the Argentine chief magistrate has the kind of honesty that can stand any strain.

Not only financial, but intellectual honesty! His contempt of diplomatic sham was illustrated in his refusal—even to be polite—to send representatives to the Pan-American peace conference in Washington—because, as he said freely, he considers such conferences hypocritical.

His courage? As Argentine president, 1916-'22, he successfully defied the United States' and all the European allies' combined pressure to force him into a policy of hostility toward the central powers.

In a primitive sort of ability—for his academic education is sketchy—ch is almost Lincolnian.

As president of a larger country, Hipolito Irigoyen assuredly would rank among the world's historic statesmen—perhaps as the greatest of today.

His republic has dwarfed him hitherto.

By his vigilance he undoubtedly saved Mr. Hoover's life—though it is pretty certain, probably from pure guesswork, that he was not very anxious to have the president-elect for a guest. In return, it may be that Mr. Hoover's policy in the presidency will reveal Senor Irigoyen as South America's "big man," for what he really is.

A VERY SICK MAN

Two Scotsmen decided to become teetotalers. But McGregor thought it would be best if they had one bottle of whiskey to put in the cupboard, in case of illness; so the bottle was bought and put in the bottle mentioned.

After three days Sandy could bear it no longer, and said, "McGregor, I am ill."

"Too late," says McGregor. "I was ill all yesterday!"

Sauteed Oysters. Baked Potatoes. Cole Slaw. Apple Rice Pudding. Coffee.

Today's Recipes

Sauteed Oysters—Clean the necessary number of oysters, prepare bread crumbs, lift oysters by the tough muscles with a fork, dip in bread crumbs and drop into frying pan. Brown on one side, then turn them over and brown on the other. Serve.

Apple-Rice Pudding—Three cups milk, one-fourth cup rice, one egg, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, four stewed apples. Wash rice, add to the milk and boil until rice is tender. Stir from time to time to prevent it from sticking. Remove from fire, add sugar, egg and vanilla beaten together and mix well. Arrange in bottom of buttered pudding dish sliced, stewed apples, then fill the dish nearly full of rice. Set pudding in pan of hot water and bake in oven at a temperature of 400 F., until a light brown. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

White Fruit Cake—Two-thirds cup fat, one and one-fourth cups powdered sugar, one teaspoon almond extract, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon lemon juice, two and one-fourth cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup blanched almonds, one-half cup candied pineapple, chopped, one-fourth cup candied cherries, chopped fine, one-fourth cup dates, chopped, three egg whites, stiffly beaten. Cream fat, add sugar gradually. Add extract, milk and lemon juice. Mix and stir together all the dry ingredients. Add these, with nuts and fruit to the first mixture. Mix well, and lastly fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Pour into loaf cake tin lined with wax paper and bake in moderate oven one and one-half hours. Allow to cool before putting in tin box to keep. This improves with age.

Mince-meat

(This recipe was sent in by one of our readers, Mrs. R. R. Humphrey of Eureka, Kan. It is 150 years old.)

Boil thoroughly and chop fine when cold, two pounds lean beef. Rub one pound suet (raw) to powder, when you have rid it of skin and strings. Pare, core and chop fine five pounds apples. Seed and cut into halves two pounds raisins, wash and clean ten pounds currants and one pound Sultanina raisins. Cut small with scissors three-fourths pound citron. Mix all ingredients in a great bowl. Have ready tablespoon each of cloves, allspice, two tablespoons cinnamon and mace, one teaspoon salt and two and one-half pounds brown sugar.

Mix these thoroughly with meat and fruit, finally wet down jar with cover. It will keep all winter. Add to pies few pieces English walnuts cut fine. A glass of tart jelly or jam is also a nice addition to this recipe.

EVERYONE SHOULD DRINK MILK; FOR MILK CONTAINS CALCIUM

The Importance of Calcium in Diet

Mrs. O. Wants to know something of calcium in relation to the body, and if the lack of it can be inherited.

Your question is an important one, and I will write on it, for, unless we give a little special thought to calcium, ordinary diets are apt to be deficient in it.

Calcium is present in larger proportion in the body than any other mineral, for it forms the larger part of the bones. It is also necessary in solution in the blood and other body fluids for normal functioning.

The common name for calcium is lime, and the green vegetables and milk contain it in largest proportion. A quart of milk has more lime than a quart of saturated lime water. The calcium constituent of milk is one of the big reasons that we all should have some every day. Naturally children should have more than adults, but adults should have at least one glassful a day, preferably two (a child three to four glasses). This need not be taken all in the form of drinks but in cheese, soups, custards, sauces, etc.

If the mother does not get enough calcium in her prenatal period Nature seems to rob her tissues of calcium for the fetus.

(This is one of the reasons for the rapid crumbling of the teeth of the mother during the prenatal period.) No, the lack of calcium would not be so apt to be inherited. But the effect on Baby? We have an article on Balanced Diet, which you may have.

Mechanical Appliances for Fat in Spots

G.—The mechanical appliances—vibrators and rollers—for reducing fat in spots. These are especially good for fat in spots. The body vibrating machines give you a good deep massage which is general. The hand machines that you have to work yourself make you exercise, and in reality, you probably get more benefit from them because of the active exercise combined. Active exercise is the thing, for it actually causes the excess fat to be used up to furnish the power to get the exercises with.

Of course, you have to diet with any of these mechanical appliances for if you still continue to eat so that more excess fat is formed that you use up, then you won't reduce.

Don't use any of the mechanical devices, or manual massage, on the breasts (unless the massage is very gentle—and then it probably wouldn't do very much good.) You must depend upon general reduction and special and general exercises for the chest. No, there is no danger of these mechanical things causing any cancer anywhere, unless you should happen to have a wart or mole or lump in the locality that might be irritated by the friction.

Before taking any deep massage of the body, one should have a thorough physical examination to see if there is any reason why massage should not be taken.

We have an article on the Atonic Abdominal Wall, which gives some splendid Tummy Ten exercises. Also a pamphlet which gives instructions on how to lose one's girth. Write to Little Virginia Hunt—Write to me again, Virginia. You did not give your address before.

Living and Loving

DO YOU HATE TO BE ALONE? LEARN TO LIKE OWN COMPANY

Independence brings happiness.

Are you young or old, male or female, you cannot know true happiness unless you are standing on your own two feet. Then only are you "mar of your fate," and "captain of your soul." Learn to be sufficient unto yourself. Don't be the kind of person who must always have someone to entertain them, who cannot be alone. When you have learned the lesson of self-reliance you will, to a large extent, have mastered the secret of contentment.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a widow of ten or twelve years. I am, of course, without my husband. I miss his companionship, and then I have no provision for my keep. The court settled up affairs with a big debt on my shoulders to pay off. This I have been trying to do as best I can. I had to leave home to get the necessary work to do. Then I had to quit work to come home. I am at mother's home taking care of her. She is an invalid. She doesn't seem to want me, however. My sister now wishes to come and stay with mother. Now there is a widow who has tried different times to see me to keep house for him. I asked him who would be her. He said there would be he and I. I told him that I had always refused housekeeping jobs, for I always tried to keep my path of life clear of that that would make people talk. I do not know just what to do. My daughter has told me I could come to her house and stay on account of being nervous. I hate to impose on anyone. Should I get work in a laundry or factory and room with her? That would suit me nicely.

"LONESOME MATTIE."

It seems to me that you had better do the work you like best—nursing, or, failing that, the laundry or fact that not too hard, but do not live with your daughter. It might create discord there. Why not have a little apartment of your own, or even a room or two near your daughter, and be independent? One never can be happy living where they are not wanted, and there is no reason why you should stay with your mother as long as your sister wants to take care of her. And as to the widower, I do not think you would be wise to go to keep house for him under the circumstances.

"Mrs. Lee: Tell me what to do about my lashes. They are very long, but they seem to fade into thin air about half their length. I don't like to use coloring, wax or liquid, and vaseline doesn't seem to help a bit. Could you suggest something?"

Vaseline is the only thing I know that will darken and thicken them, without injury. Keep on trying it, and you'll probably get results.

Brown Eyes: You are right not to go exclusively with the first boy friend. Play around with several until you are a bit older and know your own mind.

Troubled: Refuse to go out with the boy friend whom you dislike. "Troubled." It only makes it harder for him in the end if you see him.

Despondent: It may be that you are not eating the right food. Leave meat alone for a time, living on vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese and eggs, the latter to supply the protein that you would get in meat. Drink plenty of water, milk, orange, and tomato juice and eat that you have a good movement of the bowels every day. Keep your face immaculately clean with good soap and plenty of water. The soap you have been using is good. After washing, dab witch hazel all over your face with pad of cotton and let it dry on. After you have opened a pimple, use alcohol to sterilize it, as the discharge will start others unless you are careful to use an antiseptic. Bathe daily.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I met a boy a few years my senior and have fallen deeply in love with him. I have been with him a number of times, but he doesn't act like he loves me. Only likes me as a good friend. Would you please tell me how to win his love?"

"RED LIPS."

Continue to be a good friend. Red Lips. That's the best way I know.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Carrier Pigeon took a few steps toward the boy and Peter saw that the poor bird was quite lame. "Oh, what a shame! Were you wounded?" cried he.

"Yes, twice, and both times in the leg," Carrier Pigeon looked down proudly at his wounded member.

"One cloudy afternoon, when I was flying low to get out of the wind I caught my foot in a barb wire fence and tore it so badly that it had to be sewed up."

"And another day when I was hastening back I flew into an important message I came into a detachment of the enemy. The very second I caught sight of the enemy soldiers I soared high into the air. If I hadn't I would not be telling you this tale. As it was, I was not quite quick enough. The foe saw me and guessed right away what I was doing. How they wanted to get the message that was tied to my leg! Of course the only way they could capture it was to bring me to earth."

Out of the corner of my eye I saw several of the soldiers putting their rifles to their shoulders. I shut my eyes and flew just as fast as I could.

"Ring! Ring!" went the guns. I heard the bullets singing as they whizzed by my head. None of them touched me.

"I thought I was safe when 'Bang.' Again the rifles spat at me, and this time not all the bullets went by.

"I felt a sharp pain in my leg; it felt as though my leg was on fire. In a moment I knew what had happened. I had been hit. "But those mean soldiers had their trouble for their pains, didn't drop to earth, not I. Too well I knew what they wanted—my precious message. I would prevent it from falling into their hands at any cost if it meant my own life."

"My, what pain I was in! How my leg did ache! How dry my throat was! It seemed that I could not get a drink I should die."

"There was a brook right beneath me, but right beside it stood the enemy waiting for me to drop. All right, I would fool them! I would go without a drink and when I had to fall to earth it would be far out of their clutches."

"So when I was thirsty, I flew blindly on and at last, when it seemed as though I could not go another wing's length, I sighted headquarters."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PLACE GOD DWELLETH—For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.—Isa. 57:15.

HAS NERVE, ANYWAY

The city of Philadelphia is considering placing a memorial tablet in its city hall to honor Brigadier General Smedley Butler, once head of its police force.

General Butler, you remember, went to Philadelphia to have a free hand in wiping out graft, ending crime and cleaning up a deplorable vice situation. The city's politicians stood for his honest, energetic efforts about so long—and then they got him thrown out on his ear.

You also remember, doubtless, what has happened since. A third of the police department's high officers have been dismissed under charges. Revelations of graft and corruption that would shock even Chicago have been made. One of the most odorous messes in the history of American municipalities has been uncovered.

Offhand, one would hardly think that Philadelphia's city officials would have the gall to put up a tablet of General Butler right now.

A PASTOR'S OPTIMISM

If you have a dour feeling that the optimist is usually left holding the bag, hark to the experience of the Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, pastor of the First Christian church of Ardmore, Okla.

A matter of a decade ago the Rev. Brooks came to this church as pastor. He helped the deacons draw up a budget for the year, and then suggested that instead of giving him a regular salary the church, at the end of the year, simply give him whatever surplus funds were left after all other bills were met. He was optimistic enough to believe that this would work.

As it happens, it has worked beautifully. The Rev. Brooks still holds that pulpit and is getting along nicely. The church has never yet failed to live within its budget—something rather unusual, for any organization—and the ministers optimism has been justified by the results.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

The season in which ones thoughts turn to Christmas trees is just about upon us. And so much has been written about forest conservation recently that many people feel that cutting down young fir trees for Christmas constitutes a needless drain upon our forests.

Such fears, however, are ungrounded. This comes on the authority of no less a person than Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, and a last-ditch defender of our forests if ever there was one.

The type of tree used for Christmas, says Pack, would not be worth a great deal even if it were allowed to mature in its nature setting. In addition, an ever-increasing proportion of Christmas trees comes from private forests that are restocked yearly, so that the supply is maintained constantly.

So go ahead and plan on having an old-fashioned tree—you can do it with a clear conscience.

The Way of the World

PARACHUTING

It begins to look as though flying would come to be the safest of all forms of travel. The earth is getting pretty thickly spread with one thing and another and it takes a lot of dodging to beat the incessant game. Comes now the invention of the Goliath of parachutes, 84 feet in diameter and capable of holding a whole airplane and some passengers aloft. Let something go wrong with the airplane of the near future and all the passengers can climb into the parachute and slip down to the nearest convenient pasture.

NERVE TO QUIT

E. E. Fulton established the flying field near Akron where the workshops of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation will be located. His dream of great dirigibles manufactured in this country is coming true. An interesting thing to know about Fulton is that he quit his job some years ago to make his first flight. He believed in the future of lighter-than-air craft. He couldn't get the time off to experiment, so he gave up a regular place. Takes nerve to do that. A man must be sure he is right. Our lack of nerve to do that very thing, however, may make all the difference between success and failure.

CRADLE DAYS

The hush-a-bye days are gone forever. Two Toronto university teachers have been investigating the sleep habits of children. Few children pass into the land of nod to the soothing croon of a lullaby. And the cradle rocking age is past. Science has no regrets but the memories of old songs when the dark came down will linger.

We learn from these experienced sleep investigators that "sleeping in the daytime has no effect on the night sleep of infants, but too much daytime sleep interferes with the night rest of older children. Between the third and fourth year of life the child should not be permitted to sleep longer than about one and a half hours in the daytime. More than this not only interferes with night rest, but also deprives the child of fresh air and play activity that he needs."

SENTIMENT

There seems in this modern age to be a pretty general tendency to attach less importance to sentimental appeal and more to importance to a perfectly scientific or efficient approach. And to a considerable extent this is as it should be. But let's not lose all our perspective. Let's not get out of balance. The whole man is the normal man. He is a creature of sentiment and emotion as well as a creature of mind and muscle. Denying sentiment, denying tender emotions, is denying a part of ourselves. What we feel is important, as well as what we think.

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK—Among other things that make chaw-chin the various Main Stem luncheon places is the elval war now going on between Harry Jolson and his younger brother, Al Jolson. One of the theatrical weeklies contains a page at which reveals the professional jealousy that exists between the two, and it is a most repulsive advertisement. A Harry Jolson shrieks his envy to the world and appears to hunger for some of the success enjoyed by Al, for he reprints clippings from provincial reviewers which argue that he is a better entertainer than his more successful kin. In fewer words, boys will be boys.

I Hollerwood

Take it from Len Hall, this repartee is supposed to have happened in the moon pitcher sector. A movie magnate who had received a complaint from the censor, Will Hays, summoned his staff and cried:

"We got to be careful, you hear? All right, let's have sex—but clean sex!"

Bands Across the Sea

Both Chellis, one of the better songstresses at the Rendezvous club, who just returned from Britain, brought the following clipping from the London Daily Express. It refers in part to the dinner in Gene Tunney's honor there a few months ago. "..... The King was toasted and the band played 'God Save the King.' Then the president of the United States was toasted, but the band, somewhat perplexed, played 'Old Man River.'"

Gae

Take it from Lew Brown, the co-author of "Sonny Boy" and numerous other smash song hits, who avers he overheard the gae. One colored fellow met another, and said:

"Whatcher doin'?"

"Ah we're wid eight fellers, an' Ah thinks they calls 'em a quartet."

"Have you made any money lately?"

"Well, we've only had one job so far. We fuz engaged fo' to play at a funeral, but when we got there the man wuzn't daid yet, so we sang till he died."

Incidentally

Lew Brown, financially, is almost in the seven-figure division, what with tremendous song and show royalties piling up daily. But a few years ago he was poor, you might say, giving away precious ditties for little return. One publisher finally presented him with a royalty check for $19,000, the first real money Brown almost had. A moment later, however, the publisher wept that he was sorry indeed of the $19,000, and if Brown would wait a while he would pay it back with 6 percent. Two days later the publisher went bankrupt. In his rage, Brown yelled: "Wait and some day I'll be mightier than you are in this business!" Today Brown will tell you his temper got the better of him and that he really didn't mean those words.

But what we started out to say was that the old floor of the building formerly occupied by the bankrupt publisher was recently purchased by the music firm of DeSylva, Brown & Henderson just to use as their shipping room!

Ain't We Got Fun?

For diversion many of the locals are toying with what is said to be a new pastime. You ask your listener for a new dime. Placing the coin on a table, you cover the lower half of the E Pluribus Unum side with a card or a bit of paper. This reveals something resembling a fence, an overhanging tree, and the hood of a car which is parked under the tree. Then the dialogue goes like this:

"Do you see the fence on the country road?"

The retort should be "Yes." Then: "See the tree with a Ford parked under it?"

The reply should be "Uh-huh."

Then: "See the fellow and girl necking in the Ford?"

The reply will be: "Nope, I don't see anybody necking."

"Well," you say, as you pocket the coin, "what the hell do you want for a dime?"

Compliments should be addressed to the managing editor, not us.

Of All Things!

Speaking of rackets, a friend tells of a lad who is getting away with a stunt in the local hotel. The fellow is homely, and employs his trick because it is a sure-fire way to meet women. After registering at a hotel he goes outside and telephones the place, asking for himself. The operator naturally reports that Mr. Soundso isn't in, "but will you leave a message?"

"Yes," Tell him," says the speaker, "that John Gilbert and Ramon Navarro are in town and to get in touch with them."

This gag is repeated for a few days, with the impression left on the phone girl that the guest is a big gun with the celebrated. As a rule, the phone operator spreads the news to her girl friends in the hotel, and introductions usually follow.

A few days afterward he checks out and repeats the racket to another hotel. Invariably comes some of New York's prettiest and most glibbly women, who fall harder than the "extras" in Hollywood who have been promised a screen test.

GUESS WHERE THE BLOW FALLS HARDEST

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Herbert Hoover has traveled so fast that his impressions of the people and places he has seen on his South American trip must be rather blurred.

South America getting tiresome? Yes, but how change the subject?—with Mr. Hoover still in that part of the world—and plots being discovered to blow him sky high—and Secretary Kellogg just done talking perpetual peace with the representatives of 19 Latin American republics—meanwhile hanging onto two of their numpties' coat tails to keep them from flying to war.

Alas, dear reader! Never again can South America be the same closed book to us that it was before our president-elect started on his whirlwind tour. Herbert yanked the volume open for fair. It interests him. He may make it read it from start to finish in the next four years.

However, I did mean to give it a rest for a while—until President Irigoyen of Argentina discovered that plot to bomb Mr. Hoover's train.

Really! that can hardly be ignored.

In general, Mr. Hoover's South American impressions must, indeed, be rather blurred.

But one exception ought to be made.

That our president-elect will bring back with him a clean-cut mental photograph of the personality of Hipolito Irigoyen is a pretty safe bet.

In the first place, to have a man frustrate a plot to blow you up is enough to impress him on your mind. Secondly, President Irigoyen is not an individual to meet and then forget—or mix up with anybody else.

Mr. Hoover's terms with South American public men unquestionably will be far closer than those of any president of the United States who ever has preceded him, and among Latin American public men President Irigoyen stands out as a unique character.

His administration and President

They may like or they may hate one another. In either case, in the calculations of any White House tenant who is deeply concerned in Pan-American relationships, Hipolito Irigoyen is sure to bulk big.

As rough as a nutmeg grater, the Argentine chief magistrate has the kind of honesty that can stand any strain.

Not only financial, but intellectual honesty! His contempt of diplomatic sham was illustrated in his refusal—even to be polite—to send representatives to the Pan-American peace confabulations in Washington—because, as he said freely, he considers such conferences hypocritical.

His courage? As Argentine president, 1916-'22, he successfully defied the United States and all the European allies' combined pressure to force him into a policy of hostility toward the central powers. In a primitive sort of ability for his academic education is sketchy—eh is almost Lincolnian.

As president of a larger country, Hipolito Irigoyen assuredly would rank among the world's historic statesmen—perhaps as the greatest of today.

His republic has dwarfed him hitherto.

By his vigilance he undoubtedly saved Mr. Hoover's life—though it is pretty certain, probably from pure grinchiness, that he was not very anxious to have the president-elect for a guest. In return, it may be that Mr. Hoover's policy in the presidency will reveal Senor Irigoyen as South America's "big man," for what he really is.

A VERY SICK MAN

Two Scotsmen decided to become teetotallers. But McGregor thought it would be best if they had one bottle of whiskey to put in the cupboard, in case of illness; so the bottle was bought and put in the place mentioned.

After three days Sandy could bear it no longer, and said, "McGregor, I am ill!"

"Too late," says McGregor. "I was ill all yesterday!"

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I have already told you how easily the dry skin falls into the lines and wrinkles of premature age. If, then, upon a careful study of your own skin condition you reach the conclusion that you have the sensitive, delicate, dry skin, you must prepare at once to give the tissues nourishment—and lots of it!

Usually the best time to apply nourishing cream is at night. You must use it fairly generously, and be sure to wet a rich, heavy cream that will do the most good in the least time.

If your face is very thin, you might try nightly applications of warm olive or coconut oil. Heat the oil in a little enamel cup, and pull your cotton into very thin square pads. Saturate the cotton with the oil when it has reached a comfortable heat, and place the pads over the forehead, cheeks and chin. Renew from time to time, trying to maintain a regular heat. Relax throughout this process.

Sweet, heavy cream from milk put into the skin is generally reputed to be nourishing, and fresh sour cream is astringent and bleaching. This must be carefully removed with first warm and then cold water.

Remember, too, that the dry skin needs protection. Wind-proof cream, special toning lotion and the foundations made on a slightly oily base will not only prevent further drying, but nourish the tissues while they protect them.

If your skin is of this thin, dry, delicate type, you should reduce your soap and water washings to a minimum, substituting the cold cream or oil cleansings. Whenever you do use soap and water, follow the washing with a thin coating of nourishing cream which may be carefully wiped away again in a few minutes.

Today's Recipes

Sauteed Oysters—Clean the necessary number of oysters, prepare bread crumbs, lift oysters by the tough muscle with a fork, dip in bread crumbs and drop into butter which you have heated in frying pan. Brown on one side, then turn them over and brown on the other. Serve.

Apple Rice Pudding—Three cups milk, one-fourth cup rice, one egg, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, four stewed apples. Wash rice, add to the milk and boil until rice is tender. Stir from time to time to prevent it from sticking. Remove from fire, add sugar, egg and vanilla beaten together and mix well. Arrange bottom of buttered pudding dish sliced, stewed apples, then fill the dish nearly full of rice. Set pudding in pan of hot water and bake in oven at a temperature of 400 F., until a light brown. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

White Fruit Cake—Two-thirds cup fat, one and one-fourth cups powdered sugar, one teaspoon almond extract, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon lemon juice, two and one-fourth cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup blanched almonds, one-half cup candied pineapple, chopped, one-fourth cup candied cherries, chopped, one-fourth cup dates, chopped, three egg whites, stiffly beaten. Cream fat, add sugar gradually. Add extract, milk and lemon juice. Mix and sift together all the dry ingredients. Add these, with nuts and fruit to the first mixture. Mix well, and lastly fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Pour into loaf cake tin lined with wax paper and bake in moderate oven one and one-half hours. Allow to cool before putting in tin box to keep. This improves with age.

Mince-meat

(This recipe was sent in by one of our readers, Mrs. R. R. Humphrey of Eureka, Kan. It is 150 years old.)

Boil thoroughly and chop fine. Cold, two pounds lean beef. Rub one pound suet (raw) to the meat. Have ready a large bowl. Have ready table-spoon each of cloves, allspice, two tablespoons cinnamon and mace, one teaspoon salt and two and one-half pounds brown sugar. Mix these thoroughly with meat and fruit, finally wet down with cider. Cook. Pack in stone jar with cover. It will keep all winter. Add to pie a few pieces English walnuts cut fine. A glass of tart jelly or jam is also a nice addition to this recipe.

EVERYONE SHOULD DRINK MILK; FOR MILK CONTAINS CALCIUM

The Importance of Calcium in Diet

Mrs. O. Wants to know something of calcium in relation to the body, and if the lack of it can be inherited.

Your question is an important one, and I will write on it, for, unless we give a little special thought to calcium, our ordinary diets are apt to be deficient in it.

Calcium is present in larger proportion in the body than any other mineral, for it forms the larger part of the bones. It is also necessary in solution in the blood and other body fluids for normal functioning.

The common name for calcium is lime, and the green vegetables and milk contain it in largest proportion. A quart of milk has more lime than a quart of saturated lime water. The calcium constituent of milk is one of the big reasons that we all should have some every day. Naturally children should have more than adults, but adults should have at least one glassful a day, preferably two (a child three to four glasses). This need not be taken all in the form of drinks but in cheese, soups, custards, sauces, etc.

If the mother does not get enough calcium in her prenatal period Nature seems to rob her tissues of calcium for the fetus. (This is one of the reasons for the rapid crumbling of the teeth of the mother during the prenatal period). No, the lack of calcium would not be so apt to be inherited. But the effects might be.

We have an article on Balanced Diet, which you may have.

Why not have a little apartment of your own, or even a room or two near your daughter, and be independent? One never can be happy living where they are not wanted, and there is no reason why you should stay with your mother as long as your sister wants to take care of her. And as to the widower, I do not think you would be wise to go to keep house for him under the circumstances.

"Mrs. Lee: Tell me what to do about my eye lashes. They are very long but they seem to fade into thin air about half their length. I don't like to use coloring, wax or liquid, and vaseline doesn't seem to help a bit. Could you suggest something?"

"HOPEFUL."

Vaseline is the only thing I know that will darken and thicken them, without injury. Keep right on trying it, and you'll probably get results.

Brown Eyes: You are right not to go exclusively with the first boy friend. Play around with several until you are a bit older and know your own mind.

Troubled: Refuse to go out with the boy friend whom you so dislike. Troubled. It only makes it harder for him in the end if you see him.

Despondent: It may be that you are not eating the right food. Leave meat alone for a time, living on vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese and eggs, the latter to supply the protein that you would get in meat. Drink plenty of water, milk, orange and tomato juice and see that you have a good movement of the bowels every day. Keep your face immaculately clean with good soap and plenty of water. The soap you have been using is good. After washing, dab with hazel all over your face with pad of cotton and let it dry on. After you have opened a pimple, use alcohol to sterilize it, as the discharge will start others unless you are careful to use an antiseptic. Bathe daily.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I met a boy a few years my senior and have fallen deeply in love with him. I have been with him a number of times, but he doesn't act like he loves me. Only likes me as a good friend. Would you please tell me how to win his love?"

"RED LIPS."

Continue to be a good friend. Red Lips. That's the best way I know.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Carrier Pigeon took a few steps toward the boy and Peter saw that the poor bird was quite lame. "Oh, what a shame! Were you wounded?" cried he.

"Yes, twice, both times in the leg," Carrier Pigeon looked down proudly at his wounded member.

"One cloudy afternoon, when I was flying low to get out of the wind I caught my foot in a barbed wire fence and tore it so badly that it had to be sewed up."

"And another day when I was hastening back to camp with an important message I flew into a detachment of the enemy. The very second I caught sight of the enemy soldiers I soared high into the air. If I hadn't I wouldn't be telling you this tale. As it was, I was not quite quick enough. The foe saw me and guessed right away what I was doing. How dry my wings were! I was tied to my leg! Of course the only way they could capture it was to bring me to earth."

Out of the corner of my eye I saw several of the soldiers putting their rifles to their shoulders. I shut my eyes and flew just as fast as I could.

heard the bullets singing as they whizzed by my head. None of them touched me.

"I thought I was safe when 'Bang.' Again the rifles spit at me, and this time not all the bullets went by."

"I felt a sharp pain in my leg; it felt as though my leg was on fire. In a moment I knew what had happened. I had been hit. 'But those mean soldiers had their trouble for their pains. I didn't drop to earth, not I. Too well I knew what they wanted—my precious message. I would have died from falling into their hands at any cost if it meant my own life."

"My, what pain I was in! How my leg did ache! How dry my throat was! It seemed that if I could not get a drink I should die."

"There was a brook right beneath me, but right beside it stood the enemy waiting for me to drop. All right, I would fool them! I would go without a drink and when I had to fall to earth it would be far out of their clutches."

"Soaching and thirsty, I flew blindly on and at last, when I seemed as though I could not go another wing's length, I sighted headquarters."

"Bang! Bang! went the guns I

The balmy month of May saw great activity on the baseball diamonds, in the ring and on the golf links, but the outstanding events of the month come under the head of racing.

The colorful turf classic, the Kentucky Derby, saw a great three-year-old, Reigh Count, slash through mud and water to victory. He was ridden by Chic Lang.

Reigh Count had been the favorite throughout the pre-race season and went to the wire with the big money tied on, Mistep was second, two lengths behind, with Toro trailing third.

At Indianapolis, in the international 500-mile grid, Lou Meyer, an unknown youngster, flashed past veterans of the roaring way to victory in the big auto classic of the year.

Meanwhile Walter Hagen was showing the British how a good golfer goes about his business. Sir Walter won his third British open title with a total of 292. Hagen scored 72a on his last two rounds, taking the lead on the morning of the last day of the tourney and holding it. Gene Sarazen was second with 294, and Archie Compston third with a 295 card.

Here's what happened during May, 1928:

MAY 2—Washington ended an eight-game losing streak by beating the Yankees in the last game of their series.

Sammy Gray, St. Louis pitcher, let the Cleveland Indians down with four hits. Score, 7-0.

MAY 7—Bill Mehlhorn led the qualifying round of the British open golf tournament at Sandwich, England, with a 72.

MAY 8—George Uhle, of Cleveland, blanked the Yankees, 3-0, at New York, allowing just four hits.

MAY 9—Virgil Barnes, of the Giants, kept his team in first place by whitewashing the Pirates, 6-0, at Pittsburgh.

MAY 10—The New York Giants traded George Harper to the St. Louis Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell.

MAY 11—Walter Hagen won the British open golf title at Sandwich, England.

The Chicago Cubs won their sixth straight victory when Art Nehf blanked the Brooklyn.

The Cardinals obtained Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, to replace Bob O'Farrell.

Victorian, with Jockey Sonny Workman up, won the Preakness at Pimlico, Md. Nassak placed, Bostonian third.

MAY 13—George Uhle blanked the Athletics for Cleveland.

MAY 18—Mlle. Nanette le Brian, 21-year-old French girl, won British women's open golf title, defeating Miss Sylvia Marshall, of England, 3-2, at Hunstanton, England. Glenna Collett, the American star, had been forced out the day previous.

MAY 19—Reigh Count won the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky. Mistep, second, Toro, third.

Jole Ray won the Long Beach marathon, lowering the course record by thirteen minutes, which was close to the Olympic record.

MAY 21—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, defeated Jimmy McLarnin at New York in a fifteen round go. Mandell jabbed Jimmy dizzy.

Mick Walker, middleweight champion, knocked out George Smith in the fourth round at Elizabeth, N. J. Walker's title was not at stake.

MAY 23—Bushey Graham was recognized as bantamweight champion following his point victory over Corporal Izzy Schwartz in fifteen rounds at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rogers Hornsby announced as new manager of the Boston Braves to succeed Jack Lattery.

MAY 24—Tod Morzan successfully defends his junior lightweight title by defeating Cannonball Eddie Martin in fifteen rounds at New York.

First rumor that Gene Tunney would retire after defeating Tom Heeney was heard in eastern boxing circles.

MAY 26—T. P. Perkins won the British amateur golf title, defeating Roger Wethered, 6 and 4. It was the second year of competition in major events for Perkins.

MAY 27—The Boston Braves purchased George Staler from Washington after all American league clubs had waived on Staler.

The New York Yankees were beginning to draw away from the other American league clubs.

MAY 30—Lou Meyer, unknown 23-year-old racer, won the international 500-mile auto classic at Indianapolis, Ind., averaging 99.482 miles an hour in his Miller Special, Norman Batten and Earl Devore who later drowned when the steamer Vestris went down were also entered in the race.

Two balloon racers were killed in the national air races when lightning struck their balloons. The men were Walter Morton and Lieut. Paul Evert.

The Danger in Deep-Seated Coughs and Colds

People neglect "simple colds," which often develop pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza and other wasting diseases. They allow the cold to grow worse until the inflammation spreads to the bronchial tubes and the air passages, and the body is too weak to fight the disease.

Father John's Medicine will break up the cold and deep-seated cough and build up "fighting strength" and good red blood.

WATCHMAN SLAIN; BANDIT GETS AWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Henry W.

Gow, a night watchman at the Guggenheim Brothers laboratory, was murdered, another watchman bound and gagged and two other employees robbed today by a bandit.

Gow, a laboratory attendant, was on temporary duty as a night watchman.

Two men bringing a shipment of material from Baltimore, arrived at the laboratory at 5 a. m. The bandit, posing as a watchman, admitted them, they said, drew a revolver, took their money and escaped.

A few minutes later the robbery victims found Gow's body on the second floor, and another watchman bound and gagged on the first floor.

Thousands of persons, drawn to the scene, tied traffic in almost a hopeless jam.

No estimate of the fire damage was available today.

FIRESTONE PLANT DAMAGED BY FIRE

AKRON, O., Dec. 27.—Plans were under consideration here today for the reconstruction of the acid plant of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company which was partially destroyed by fire last night.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined. From the acid plant the flames swept to a huge pile of old tires and flames and dense clouds of smoke shot into the air.

Thousands of persons, drawn to the scene, tied traffic in almost a hopeless jam.

No estimate of the fire damage was available today.

The colorful turf classic, the Kentucky Derby, saw a great three-year-old, Reigh Count, slash through mud and water to victory. He was ridden by Chic Lang.

Reigh Count had been the favorite throughout the pre-race season and went to the wire with the big money tied on. Mistake was second, two lengths behind, with Toro trailing third.

At Indianapolis, in the International 500-mile grid, Lou Meyer, an unknown youngster, flashed past veterans of the roaring way to victory in the big auto classic of the year.

Meanwhile Walter Hagen was showing the British how a good golfer goes about his business. Sir Walter won his third British open title with a total of 292.

Hagen scored 72s on his last two rounds, taking the lead on the morning of the last day of the tourney and holding it. Gene Sarazen was second with 294, and Archie Compston third with a 295 card.

Here's what happened during May, 1928:

MAY 2—Washington ended an eight-game losing streak by beating the Yankees in the last game of the series.

Sammy Gray, St. Louis pitcher, let the Cleveland Indians down with four hits. Score, 7-0.

MAY 7—Bill Mehlhorn led the qualifying round of the British open golf tournament at Sandwich, England, with a 72.

MAY 8—George Uhle, of Cleveland, blanked the Yankees, 3-0, at New York, allowing just four hits.

MAY 9—Virgil Barnes, of the Giants, kept his team in first place by whitewashing the Pirates, 6-0, at Pittsburgh.

MAY 10—The New York Giants traded George Harper to the St. Louis Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell.

MAY 11—Walter Hagen won the British open golf title at Sandwich, England.

The Chicago Cubs won their sixth straight victory when Art Nehf blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Cardinals obtained Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, to replace Bob O'Farrell.

Victorian, with Jockey Sonny Workman up, won the Preakness at Pimlico, Md. Nassak placed. Bostonian third.

MAY 13—George Uhle blanked the Athletics for Cleveland.

MAY 18—Mlle. Nanette la Brian, 21-year-old French girl, won British women's open golf title, defeating Miss Sylvia Marshall, of England, 3-2, at Hunstanton, England. Glenna Collett, the American star, had been forced out the day previous.

MAY 19—Reigh Count won the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky. Mississippian second, Toro, third.

Jolie Ray won the Long Beach marathon, lowering the course record by thirteen minutes, which was close to the Olympic record.

MAY 21—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, defeated Jimmy McLarnin at New York in a fifteen round go. Mandell jabbed Jimmy dizzy.

Mick Walker, middleweight champion, knocked out George Smith in the fourth round at Elizabeth, N. J. Walker's title was not at stake.

MAY 23—Bushey Graham was recognized as bantamweight champion following his point victory over Corporal Izzy Schwartz in fifteen rounds at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rogers Hornsby announced as new manager of the Boston Braves to succeed Jack Slatery.

MAY 24—Tom Morgan successfully defended his junior lightweight title by defeating Cannonball Eddie Martin in fifteen rounds at New York.

First runner that Gene Tunney would retire after defeating Tom Heene was heard in eastern boxing circles.

MAY 26—T. P. Perkins won the British amateur golf title, defeating Roger Wethered, 6 and 4. It was the second year of competition in major events for Perkins.

MAY 27—The Boston Braves purchased George Sisti from Washington after all American league clubs had waived on Sisti.

The New York Yankees were beginning to draw away from the other American league clubs.

MAY 30—Lou Meyer, unknown 23-year-old racer, won the International 500-mile auto classic at Indianapolis, Ind., averaging 99.482 miles an hour in his Miller Special, Norman Batten and Earl Devore who later drowned when the steamer Vestris went down were also entered in the race.

Two balloon racers were killed in the national air races when lightning struck their balloons. The men were Walter Morton and Lieut. Paul Evert.

THE DANGER IN Deep-Seated Coughs And Colds

People neglect "simple colds," which often develop pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza and other wasting diseases. They allow the cold to grow worse until the inflammation spreads to the bronchial tubes and the air passages, and the body is too weak to fight the disease.

Father John's Medicine will break up the cold and deep-seated cough and build up "fighting strength" and good red blood.

Father John's Medicine does its work without using drugs or alcohol. It has had over 73 years of success.

AVIATOR SAYS HE SAW MISSING PAIR

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., Dec. 27.—Spurred on by an aviator's report that he had seen two persons yesterday in the lower Grand Canyon, searchers renewed search today for Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hyde, missing "thrill hunters" who left civilization Nov. 15 for a scout trip down the Colorado River to Needles, Calif.

The search is being carried on by boat party, led by Emory Kolb, Colorado River pioneer, an airplane and a horseback party which is scheduled to meet Kolb's men soon.

Voted Most Valuable

Garland Beavers, University of Arkansas fullback during the last grid season, has been selected as the most valuable player of the Southwest conference. Beavers, who lives in Mena, Ark., will receive a silver trophy as a result of his selection.

WATCHMAN SLAIN; BANDIT GETS AWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Henry W. Gow, a night watchman at the Guggenheim Brothers laboratory, was murdered, another watchman bound and gagged and two other employees robbed today by a bandit.

Gow, a laboratory attendant, was on temporary duty as a night watchman.

Two men bringing a shipment of material from Baltimore, arrived at the laboratory at 5 a. m. The bandit, posing as a watchman, admitted them, they said, drew a revolver, took their money and escaped.

A few minutes later the robbery victims found Gow's body on the second floor, and another watchman bound and gagged on the first floor.

FIRESTONE PLANT DAMAGED BY FIRE

AKRON, O., Dec. 27.—Plans were under consideration here today for the reconstruction of the acid plant of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company which was partially destroyed by fire last night.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined. From the acid plant the flames swept to a huge pile of old tires and flames and dense clouds of smoke shot into the air.

Thousands of persons, drawn to the scene, tied traffic in almost a hopeless jam.

No estimate of the fire damage was available today.

Wilkins Solves Riddle of Unknown Antarctic Wastes

1—After working all night changing supplies from seaplane to land plane and clearing a rough runway—
2—Forty feet in width and with a very dangerous dog's leg turn half way down its length—
3—Wilkins' plane was able to take off, thanks to Eielson's skill at the controls, and soared out to sea.
4—After fifty minutes a height of 6,000 feet had been reached, and this was barely enough to clear the Graham Land plateau.
5—From 8,000 feet they saw two channels in the mountain chain and then a wide strait between mountains and Polar continent.
6—Wilkins returned to Deception Island after 1,200-mile flight, lasting nine and a half hours, tired and sleepless, to receive crew's welcome.

CITY'S INCENDIARY BLASTS MOUNT

The fifty-fifth incendiary explosion in Kansas City, Mo., within the year shattered the home of Frank Carella, who is serving a term at Leavenworth on a bootlegging charge, and set fire to the home of Jacob Basgall, next door. Carella's family was not at home when the blast occurred and Mrs. Basgall and her five small children were rescued from their home, shown above, by a neighbor.

Does Cupid Favor 20-40 Romances?

It would seem so from number of recent May and September weddings. Dolores Costello (left), fair and twenty, became the bride of John Barrymore (right), royal thespian, who could "almost have been her father." But that's neither here nor there. Nor can there be any question as to the happiness of Ruby Keeler, who in all her radiant beauty of eighteen summers, is the happy wife of Al Jolson, the "singin' fool." The latter, forty or otherwise, won his wife from a youthful rival.

SMITH'S SUCCESSOR ENDS VACATION

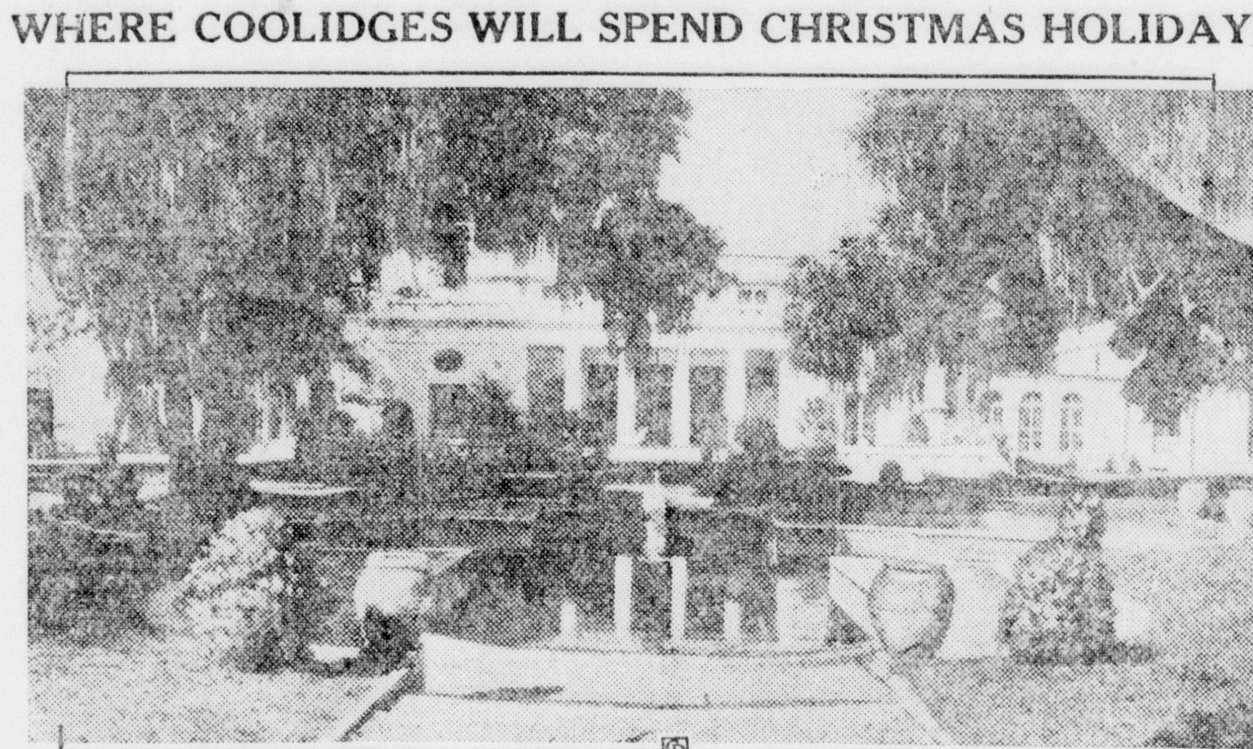

New York's new governor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has returned to the metropolis after his vacation in the south, ready to plunge into preparations for his inauguration, Jan. 1. He is shown upon his return with Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter, Mrs. C. A. Doll.

Diplomat's Wife

This is a new photograph of Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, wife of the recently appointed U. S. minister to Salvador, who has been visiting in Washington, D. C.

Sapelo's island, off the coast of Georgia, home of Howard E. Coffin, joins the long list of temporary White Houses, since President and Mrs. Coolidge plan to spend a part of the Christmas holidays there. Above, the Coffin home.

War Hero Divorced by No. 4

Decorated by France for extreme gallantry in action during World War, author of several plays and novels, Preston Gibson (above) has been divorced by Mrs. Evelyn Spaulding Gibson, his fourth mate. The decree was obtained in Reno, where a court gave plaintiff custody of a nine-months-old child.

On the Road to Happiness!

Clear the line for A. C. Needles, 61, president of the Norfolk & Western railroad, and his 26-year-old bride, the former Miss Edith Hortense Clarke, who were married in St. Bartholomew's church, New York City. Here they are after the important ceremony.

Pasadena's Pride

California's "most perfect" child, Eugene Boris Burkus, of Pasadena, is very busy these days welcoming mayors and city officials to Pasadena's Carnival of Roses on New Year's day.

They're Betrothed

Engagement of Miss Janet Newbold, member of Washington's "400," and Allan A. Ryan, Jr., grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, multi-millionaire capitalist, has been announced by parents of bride-to-be. The wedding is set for Feb. 5.

ENGLAND'S KING AND ROYAL HEIR

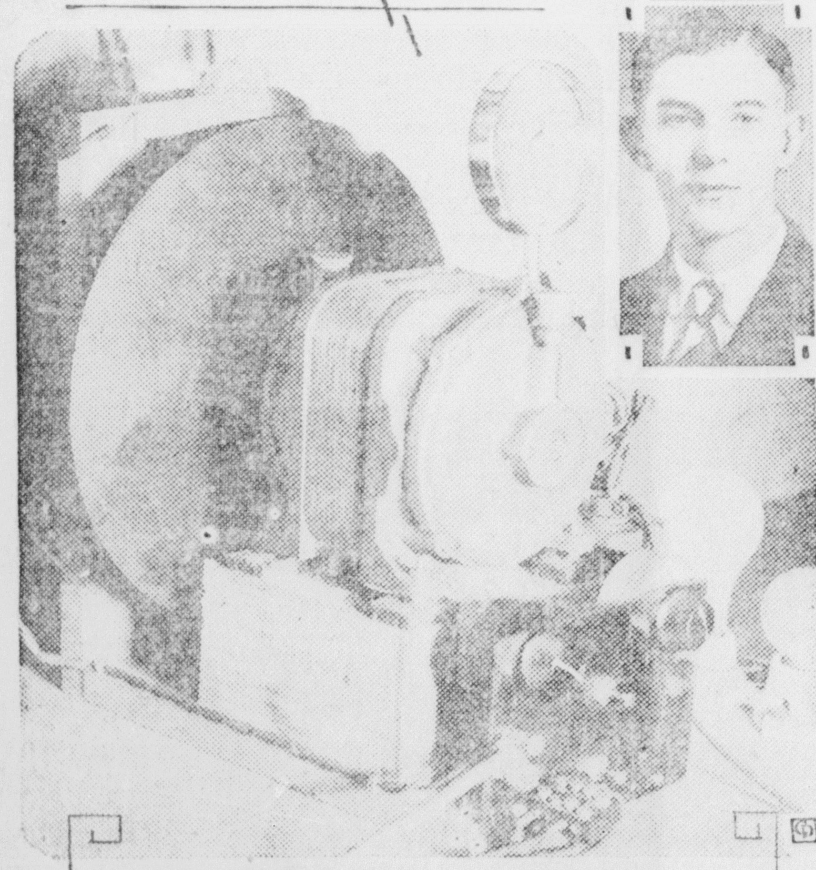

Here is a striking photo of King George V and the Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, walking together from Buckingham palace, London, taken in 1922. England has been alarmed over her monarch's illness.

Rich Marchioness Adopts Them

Ever since their papa died Marjorie and Isabelle Meuser (above) have lived with their stepmother, Mrs. Louise Meuser of Chicago. But henceforth their lives are to be just like the princesses in the story books. For their great aunt, the Marchioness of Huntly, one of Britain's wealthiest women, has adopted them and they will be brought up as her daughters. They're shown in the photo as they arrived in New York en route to England.

BOY MAKES OWN TELEVISION SET

Working on it in his home and spending but $75 for materials, Paul Dudeck, Jr., 18, inset, of Monroe, Mich., made the television set shown above. Paul astonished neighbors by receiving a picture sent by an electrical company in Schenectady, N. Y., on his set.

Gravely Ill

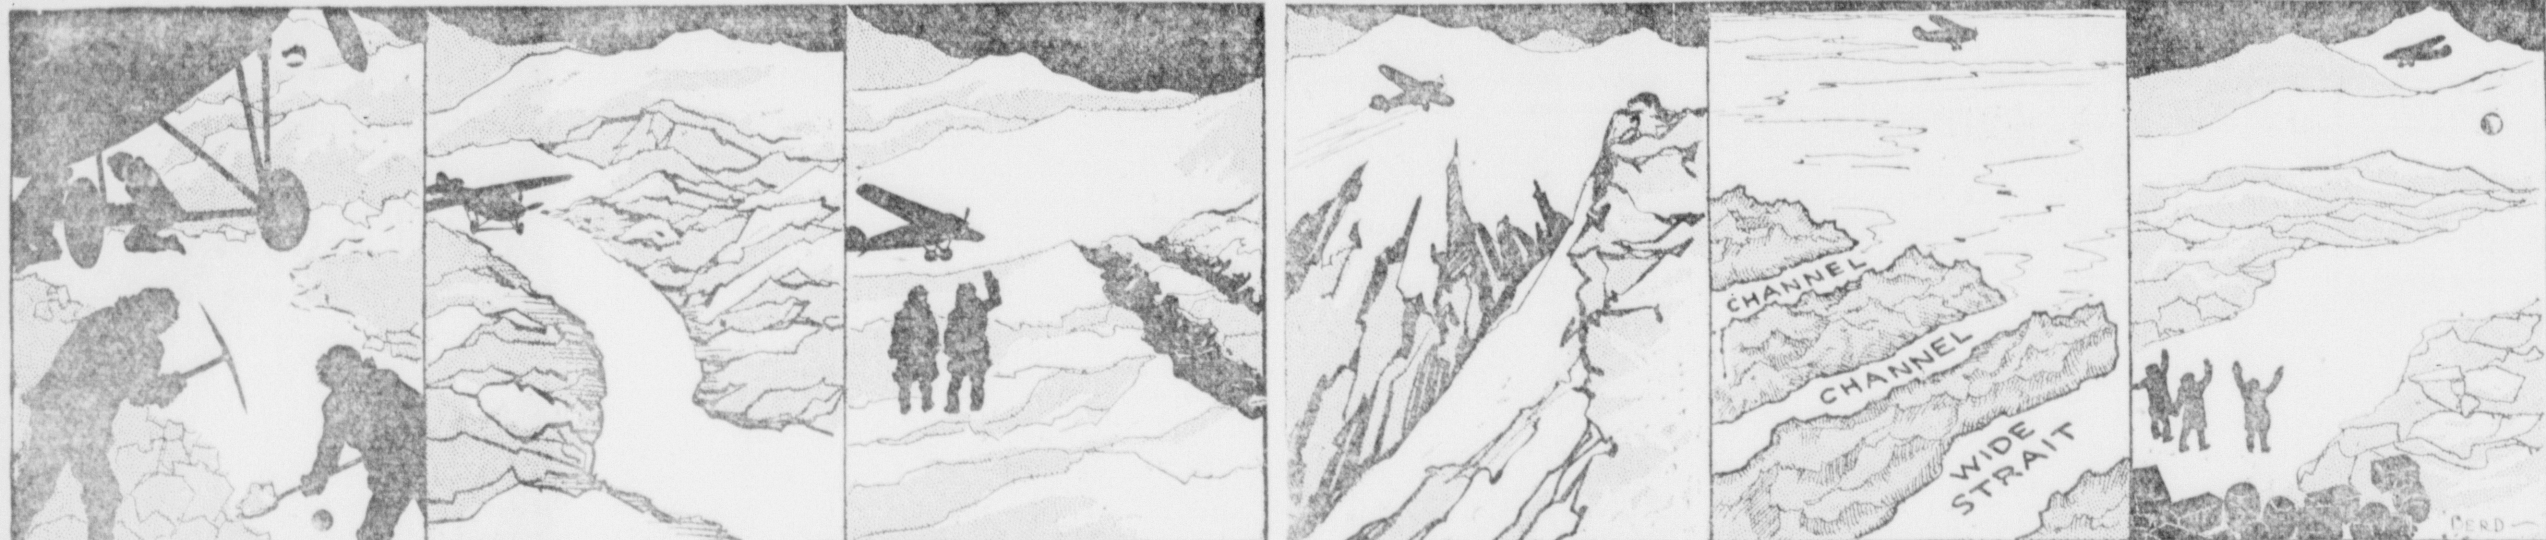

Head of all that remains of once powerful Romanoff family of Russia, the Grand Duke Nicholas (above), once commander-in-chief of the Czar's armies, is seriously ill of pneumonia at his chateau near Antibes, France. His advanced age makes recovery doubtful.

BIRTH CONTROL TO BE DISCUSSED

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—The attitude of the church on birth control and other questions affecting the home will be discussed by ministers attending the annual convention of the Ohio pastors here Jan. 21-24.

Seven questions, proposed by the committee on moral welfare in the home, will be submitted to the conference. They are:

1. "Is the American family degenerating?"

2. "Can the monogamous family withstand the assault of behaviorism, mechanism and materialism in class room, commercial circles and the clubs?"

3. "Should the church oppose scientific teaching of birth control?"

4. "What is the greatest danger confronting the American home today: easy marriage, easy divorce or economic conditions?"

5. "Just how badly off are we in respect to divorce?"

6. "Should the number of divorces allowed to an individual be limited by law?"

GEYER BOOK SHOP TO OCCUPY NEW H. E. SCHMIDT BUILDING

Lease of the main floor of the new H. E. Schmidt Bldg., S. Detroit St., by The Geyer Book Shop, was announced by George D. Geyer, owner, Thursday.

The book shop will be moved from its present quarters in the Allen Building, S. Detroit St., to the new location February 1, Mr. Geyer disclosed. In connection with the announcement, Mr. Geyer revealed his plans to open a soda fountain and sandwich shop in connection with the present business. In the new quarters.

Half of the new room will be given over to the new department and the space will be furnished with booths and tables to accommodate the luncheon trade. Mr.

TEACHERS TO MEET

WILL HEAR CHORUS

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—The Ohio State Teachers' Association will convene in annual holiday session here tonight as a chorus of 1,000 picked high school pupils sing.

More than 10,000 pedagogues were registering today for the session.

The chorus—one of the largest ever gathered together in the state—will sing under the direction of Prof. Griffith J. Jones, of Glenville High School, Cleveland.

The mass-singing is expected to demonstrate the uniform standard of music instruction in Ohio schools and was arranged by Miss Edith M. Keller, of Delaware, supervisor of music in the state department of education.

A similar demonstration in the orchestral division will be given at tomorrow night's session under the direction of Eugene J. Welgel of the Cleveland schools.

Among the songs which will be sung tonight are Christmas hymns, with the audience participating; Silent Night, Joy to the World and The First Noel.

HORSE KICK FATAL

TO YALE STUDENT

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 27.—Henry Stoddard Sherman, Jr., 20, South Euclid, O., is dead from a fractured skull suffered Christmas day when he was kicked by a saddle horse.

He was a junior at Yale, and was spending his Christmas vacation at his home. In the afternoon of Christmas day he went for a horseback ride, and it was when he was dismounting upon his return that the animal kicked him.

Young Sherman was graduated from University School here with first honors, after serving as president of his class, member of the football team, president of the student council and editor of the University School News. At Yale he was managing editor of the Yale Daily News, member of his class crew, the football squad and a member of Chi Psi Fraternity.

FIRE DAMAGE HIGH

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 27.—Fire swept the Katz Brothers warehouse and the Rome Company, Inc., maidens of mattresses and beds, here last midnight. Damage was estimated today at $17,000. The blaze was discovered by a taxicab chauffeur. It was brought under control after a general alarm was sounded, bringing all available fire fighting apparatus to the scene.

N' YAWK SOCIETY JUST ISN'T!

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—New York society, long considered paramount in the nation's social life has been characterized as merely a "conglomeration" by one of its own members.

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, wife of the former president of the National City Bank of New York, gave her opinion of New York's social status yesterday in a way which members of the "blue book" agreed lacked that "merry Christmas" touch.

Mrs. Vanderlip is active in Westchester County politics and just now is trying to marshal public opinion against the legislature's passing a constitutional amendment relating to a county charter. "There is no New York society. It is simply a conglomeration," she said.

"The city has not had any for many years, since the time of Mrs. Astor. There cannot be society without a leader and there is too much society in New York to have a leader."

Mrs. Vanderlip recalled the days of Mrs. Vincent Astor, who remains a byword with those she relegates or lowered to New York society by a simple "you're in" or "you're out."

WOMAN SOUGHT FOR FRAUD IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Friends of Mrs. T. Douglas Robinson, wife of the assistant secretary of navy, were defrauded by a woman who used Mrs. Robinson's name in obtaining funds for a children's home here, it was revealed today.

Shortly after Mrs. Robinson had issued a statement denying any connection with the home, Mrs. Alexander B. Legare, president of the institution, said none of the money collected had been received at the home.

The amount obtained by the swindler is not known.

SAVED LONG TERM

MUSKEGON, Mich., Dec. 27.—Al Zack, who makes liquor for his own consumption, will serve from ten months to one year imprisonment instead of a life term because the conscience of Prosecutor Harold Smedley would not allow him to jail a man for life for liquor law violations. Zack worked eighteen hours a day and supported his wife and seven children.

ECZEMA ON FACE AND BODY

For Years, Itching and Burning Fierce. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had eczema for years. It used to break out every once in a while on my face and different parts of my body. It was in the form of a rash and itched and burned something fierce. Scratching caused it to spread.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped so much that I purchased more, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, it was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Hazel Shellenberger, R. R. 11 Main St., Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 29, 1928.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap with touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25c and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. K, Malden, Mass.

SANTA CLAUS GOOD TO TWO CUSTOMERS

Two people who are rejoicing over beautiful gifts direct from Santa's magic pack are Henrietta Fillmore, of this city, who is hesitating whether to choose a diamond ring or a beautiful chest of silverware, and Meryl Jones, of the Cedarville-Wilberforce Pike, who has already received a twenty-five dollar wrist watch.

In both cases the Wagner Jewelry Store acted as Santa Claus and made the gifts to two of its customers. The store announced early in the shopping season that the gifts would be made. The recipient of the chest of silver was given her choice between the silverware and a diamond ring of equal value.

RUSSIAN STUDENT SPEAKS TO ROTARY

An account of her harrowing experiences in escaping from Russia following the Bolshevik uprisings in 1919, was given with graphic detail by Miss Ina Telberg, student at Wittenberg College, Springfield, to the Xenia Rotary Club at the Elks' Club, Tuesday noon.

Miss Telberg, with her brother and parents, escaped from Russia after narrowly escaping death at the hands of the Red Army. They managed to arrive by train at the Chinese border and experienced many hardships during and after their escape from Russia. They have been in the United States several years and Miss Telberg and her brother are students at Wittenberg. Miss Telberg is the guest during the holidays of Miss Annabella Dean, N. Detroit St.

SHERIFF TATE HAS "ENTERTAINED" 578

With the end of his first two-year term of office near at hand, Sheriff Omer Tate revealed Thursday that he has received a total of 578 prisoners in the County Jail since he entered upon his duties January 1, 1927.

The sheriff declared that 304 prisoners were received in 1927 and that 274 have been cared for so far this year.

The jail register record kept at the sheriff's office reveals that during the preceding four years in which Morris Sharp served as sheriff for two terms, a total of 814 prisoners were received at the jail.

This indicates an increased number of prisoners in the last two years.

EAST END NEWS

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

READ THIS FIRST:

Through the loom of every marriage, there run many threads, gay and dark, and it depends upon the dexterity of the weavers, whether the pattern will be bright and cheerful or dark and threatening.

When Byrd married Larry Browning, she had only known the sheltered life of a small town, but moving to Cleveland, she was soon hurled into the modern vortex that sucks at the youth of the city, whirling them about in the mad waters of extravagance, get-rich-quick business and soft living.

From the very beginning, Byrd began to struggle against the influences that were threatening her handsome, magnetic, speed-loving husband, influences which threatened to undermine his reputation and career, her own ambitions for a home and children and, lastly, the very foundations of their marriage.

For the elements that were combining against Byrd's happiness were many: Larry's partnership with unscrupulous Jack Duncan in a speculative scheme, floating the stock of the Builders' Supply company; Larry's continual loans from Byrd's father, who was president of a bank; the succession of parties with a fast moving crowd, consisting of Tiny and Fred Oberman, Jack and Margy Duncan, Chet Everson and India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's; Larry's refusal to break off his friendship with India, his growing extravagance; the increasing difference over bills, and economic which couldn't pay for the week's grocery bill but could afford a case of Scotch; and finally, the further rupture caused by Pat's visit. Byrd's young sister, who should have had a firm and disciplinary hand.

Unsuccessful in her many attempts to refine and educate Pat, who had become boisterous and a little wild, and who, under India's unhealthy influence, was beginning to think of giving up her business school to take a position in the department store where India, herself, worked, had started to take ballet dancing, and was spending every night of the week dancing with Eddie Worthington, Byrd decided that Larry must surely take a hand.

Larry, away now most of the time on Builders' Supply matters, was spending a week end at home. Inflated with his recent successes in the small towns, he not only was not a "good influence," but encouraged her a hundred dollars, and encouraged her love of excitement by taking her, Eddie Worthington and Byrd one night to a succession of night clubs, where he spent lavishly on food and liquor.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER XXXIII
The next day was Sunday, and Pat spent it in bed with a headache.

Larry spent the afternoon at the office with Jack Duncan. When he returned he went directly to the kitchen where Byrd was cooking their Sunday dinner.

"It was a lovely roast," said Byrd, ruefully, as she basted the meat. "I don't know what a second cooking will do to it."

"Chuck it out of the window," laughed Larry. "From now on we can afford chicken livers three times a day."

He took the spoon out of Byrd's hand and elbowed her into the living room. He moved excitedly about as he talked.

"Jack's organizing two new companies, real estate developments, and he's collected enough capital already to launch them. They've bought up some parcels of land that went on the rocks. With a chance to buy building materials at half price, they're going to build all the houses themselves and sell house and lot together. The stock will sell like hot cakes. Nifty idea, isn't it?"

But lines of worry crept between Byrd's eyes.

"Wouldn't it be safer to sell out one stock before starting another?" she asked.

"Real estate's always sure fire. And you've got your overhead, advertising and sales force already. One stock helps the other. It's a darn good scheme," Larry insisted.

"I'd be a goop not to go into it. I've got to let Jack know in a few days how much stock I want."

"Not any, as far as I can see," said Byrd, crisply.

"That's just about as far as you can see," he replied, disgustedly. "This stock is practically ready to put on the market. The sewer, gas, light, paving all in, and a couple of months to put up a few houses. It's going to be a gold mine."

"But we've simply got to pay the bills that have been collecting these two months," argued Byrd. "Where could you possibly get the money? You simply can't ask father for another cent."

"It just shows what petty minds women have!" retorted Larry, with a look that reduced Byrd to the size of that mole in the middle of her back. "You'd miss an opportunity to make a fortune just in order to pay a few hundred dollars worth of bills. You would! Well, I've told Jack I'll put in at least five thousand, and maybe more. I'm going to write your father to-day, and if he won't advance it, I'll get it somewhere else."

Byrd felt suddenly as if the world around her had collapsed right on top of her head, and she could only see ruin ahead.

"I can pay for the stock in a year, from the way things are moving with the Builders' stock. Byrd, you haven't even an inkling of a mind when it comes to finance. Better leave it to your old man!"

Larry smiled patronizingly down at her and, leaning over, gave her a sudden, hard squeeze. There was no doubt in Byrd's mind that Larry was a brilliant business man, and competent to handle any deal. He had the air of being able to sell anybody anything.

"I'm going to write your father today," he continued, with a little wheedling note in his voice, "but I want you to write him, too. Just mention the thing casually. I'll take a corkscrew to get another five thousand out of that shrewd old bird!"

Byrd shook her head.

"I can't! I don't approve of any of it! I'm wailing with fear and trembling until you're safely out of the Builders' Supply deal."

Byrd's voice trembled as faintly as the shaking of a leaf on a mild summer's day, for she knew this statement would bring an explosion from Larry that would raise the roof, and probably blow her out through the opening.

But Larry only stood before her, regarding her pityingly.

"Of course I didn't expect any cooperation from you," he said, witheringly. "You'll take all the money you can afford, but you won't lift a finger to help get it. Well, I know now just where we stand."

"Larry—" Byrd's voice was tense with a sudden hysterical onrush of misunderstood feelings. "How can you say that? I'd do anything in the world to help you. You must know that! If I were only sure that this stock is safe—"

"Whose been putting silly ideas into your head about it?" asked Larry, toiling down again. Then he took out a little notebook and began reading the names of well-known business men about town who had bought the stock. "Even the bankers are buying it. Chet Everson bought some, himself."

Byrd looked completely dumfounded. No, she decided, it couldn't be possible that Chet actually had bought stock that he didn't approve of. Larry saw her doubting look, and showed her Chet's name, with the number of shares opposite.

"I'll write father today," she promised.

"Well, it certainly was a relief to know that Larry wasn't selling phony stock, and she felt more relieved about it than she had for weeks. But why had Chet been so skeptical about it?

Byrd decided that this was the right moment to take up the matter of unpaid bills.

"Larry, you've promised me each month that you'd open a checking account for me," and Byrd tried to be very casual about it.

"It's terribly humiliating to have to ask you for every penny I spend. Even though it's for groceries, I have a silly feeling each time that I'm asking you for a favor for myself. And it's awfully bad business. I can't keep a record of everything I spend, or what it's for." Byrd admitted that every time she tried to argue with Larry, he made her feel very silly.

"You talk as if I refused to pay the bills and give you money when ever you ask for it. I'd give you five hundred dollars a month if I could, and be happy doing it. But you know—for heaven's sake, how many times have I got to explain it to you—that I haven't had any money. When I have it, you'll get it, don't worry! Larry assumed a weary tone as if there were some minds that simply couldn't grasp the most rudimentary principles of finance.

"But you just said that you've got enough money now to pay up everything," expostulated Byrd.

"When did I say that?" inquired Larry, coldly. "I'll have darn little left after I pay the office bills."

"But, Larry," insisted Byrd, despairingly, holding back with her clenched hands the tears that were blinning on the edge of her black eyelashes. "I'm willing to get along on so little, but I want that little regularly."

"That's a good joke," he said, blightingly. "You'd like it regularly when you know darn well, it comes in mighty irregularly. I'll give you every cent I've got left."

Larry counted out one hundred dollars and gave it to Byrd with a martyred look which indicated plainly that he knew that she'd strip him of his last cent if she could.

Byrd walked into the bedroom and sat down at her little desk. There was a distraught look in her eyes, eyes that looked worn with worry.

She was conscious that Pat was awake and lay staring at her as she began writing.

"Who are you writing to with that desperate look in your eyes, Unconscious?" asked Pat, idly, stretching and yawning.

When Pat wasn't stepping along in double-quick time, she was yawning and stretching and frankly lazy. Nothing could move her today.

"I'm writing to dad," said Byrd, slowly.

"Well, for Pete's sake, don't ask him for money! I sent him a heart-breaking request myself yesterday!"

And Pat trailed her shapely legs out of bed and ambled toward the bathroom.

Byrd stopped, with her pen suspended in midair, and stared at Pat.

SHERIFF TATE HAS "ENTERTAINED" 578

With the end of his first two-year term of office near at hand, Sheriff Ohmer Tate revealed Thursday that he has received a total of 578 prisoners in the County Jail since he entered upon his duties January 1, 1927.

The sheriff declared that 304 prisoners were received in 1927 and that 274 have been cared for so far this year.

The jail register record kept at the sheriff's office reveals that during the preceding four years in which Morris Sharp served as sheriff for two terms, a total of 814 prisoners were received at the jail.

This indicates an increased number of prisoners in the last two years.

EAST END NEWS

Little Horace Robert Brown, age four, son of the late Lincoln P. Brown and Ada Brown of the Wilmington Pike, died Wednesday night at 8:20 o'clock. Death was caused by pneumonia. Besides his mother, Mrs. Ada Brown, Horace is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Herman, Harold, Charles, Mary Elizabeth, Eva May and Mildred Jane. He also leaves a host of other relatives.

Brief funeral services will be held Friday morning at ten thirty at the home with burial in Cherry Grove Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Jackson's children, Mamie Rose Margaret and Noah are spending their holidays as guests of relatives in Columbus and Chicago.

SANTA CLAUS GOOD TO TWO CUSTOMERS

Two people who are rejoicing over beautiful gifts direct from Santa's magic pack are Henrietta Fillmore, of this city, who is hesitating whether to choose a diamond ring or a beautiful chest of silverware, and Meryl Jones, of the Cedarville-Wilkes Pike, who has already received a twenty-five dollar wrist watch.

In both cases the Wagner Jewelry Store acted as Santa Claus and made the gifts to two of its customers. The store announced early in the shopping season that the gifts would be made. The recipient of the chest of silver was given her choice between the silverware and a diamond ring of equal value.

BRINGING UP FATHER

LET'S LIVE! MILDRED LAMB

READ THIS FIRST:

Through the loom of every marriage, there run many threads, gay and dark, and it depends upon the dexterity of the weavers, whether the pattern will be bright and cheerful or dark and threatening.

When Byrd married Larry Browning, she had only known the sheltered life of a small town, but moving to Cleveland, she was soon hurled into the modern vortex that sucks at the youth of the city, whirling them about in the mad waters of extravagance, get-rich-quick business and soft living.

From the very beginning, Byrd began to struggle against the influences that were threatening her handsome, magnetic, speed-loving husband, influences which threatened to undermine his reputation and career, her own ambitions for a home and children and, lastly, the very foundations of their marriage.

"Well, for Pete's sake, don't ask Dad for money," said Pat.

For the elements that were combining against Byrd's happiness were many: Larry's partnership with unscrupulous Jack Duncan in a speculative scheme, floating the stock of the Builders' Supply company; Larry's continual loans from Byrd's father, who was president of a bank; the succession of parties with a fast moving crowd, consisting of Tiny and Fred Oberman, Jack and Margy Duncan, Chet Everson and India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's; Larry's refusal to break off his friendship with India, his growing extravagance; the increasing difference over bills; and economies which couldn't pay for the week's grocery bill but could afford a case of Scotch; and finally, the further rupture caused by Pat's visit, Byrd's young sister, who should have had a firm and disciplinary hand.

Unsuccessful in her many attempts to refine and educate Pat, who had become boisterous and a little wild, and who, under India's unhealthy influence, was beginning to think of giving up her business school to take a position in the department store where India, herself, worked, had started to take ballet dancing, and was spending every night of the week dancing with Eddie Worthington, Byrd decided that Larry must surely take a hand.

Larry, away now most of the time on Builders' Supply matters, was spending a week end at home, inflated with his recent successes. In the small town, he not only was not a "good influence," but encouraged Pat's extravagance, by giving her a hundred dollars, and encouraged her love of excitement by taking her, Eddie Worthington and Byrd one night to a succession of night clubs, where he spent lavishly on food and liquor.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER XXXIII

The next day was Sunday, and Pat spent it in bed with a headache.

Larry spent the afternoon at the office with Jack Duncan. When he returned he went directly to the kitchen where Byrd was cooking their Sunday dinner.

"It was a lovely roast," said Byrd, ruefully, as she basted the meat. "I don't know what a second cooking will do to it."

He took the spoon out of Byrd's hand and elbowed her into the living room. He moved excitedly about as he talked.

"Jack's organizing two new companies, real estate developments, and he's collected enough capital already to launch them. They've bought up some parcels of land that went on the rocks. With a chance to buy building material at cost from the Builders' Supply, they're going to build all the houses themselves and sell house and lot together. The stock will sell like hot cakes. Nifty idea, isn't it?"

But lines of worry crept between Byrd's eyes.

"That's just about as far as you can see," he replied, disgustedly.

"But we've simply got to pay the bills that have been collecting these two months," argued Byrd. "Where could you possibly get the money? You simply can't ask father for another cent."

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The repulsive subject of eating, now and then, is occupying an undue share of the thoughts of at least half of Broadway's actors this Yule season. Estimates, probably not much exaggerated, place at least 2,000 of them among the unemployed. Seldom has Satan had such an opportunity to win converts with nothing more complicated than a good, thick Porterhouse steak.

One small—but working—group of artists, however, finds the shoe on the other foot. They compose the cast of "Excepting Small," and the burden of their lives is that they have to eat once daily and twice on matinee days a meal composed of ham, potato salad, cake and coffee.

Eric Dressler and Ruth Easton, as the newkyeds in "Excepting Small," and Kenneth Dana and Kathleen Lowry, as their only friends, are getting very tired of ham, potato salad, cake and coffee. Their only variety for several weeks has been changing the cake from raisin to cookies to pound back to raisin again.

The script calls for consumption of every vestige of the ham, potato salad, cake and coffee at each meal with realistic grimaces, the unfortunates force it all down.

Meanwhile, many of their fellow actors and actresses are tramping Broadway too near starvation to see any joke in this situation. A favorite pastime among some of the crueler residents of Broken Heart Gulch is to engage these pitiable Thespians in long reminiscent conversations about the "real food plays" of the past, including the recent "Elmer, the Great" in which Walter Huston, in the role of Ring Lardner's bush league pitcher, gorged himself on real pan cakes. The tremendous meal George Arliss stowed away nightly in "Old English" is almost immortal. It was honest food. That served at the state dinner in Molnar's "The Swan" was mostly flattery imitation. Lionel Atwill is probably the most emphatic and gracefully ful trencherman of the stage today, but when Leo Dietrichstein was alive he could hold an audience spellbound with a knife and the proper fork.

In addition to the following pictures, which some blame for the big slump in the actor market, the low-priced movie cathedrals, which others blame, and a dearth of good plays, which still others blame, the 2,000 jobless actors on Christmas week faced a new competition. This was the most disheartening of all. Three puppet shows opened.

J. H. Milburn, who has conducted a mercantile business in Cedarville for forty years is about to retire and the famous Adams store in Jamestown, which has earned the title of "Old Reliable," is also closing up its affairs after an existence of fifty years.

Three hundred poor persons in Xenia were made happy on Christmas by receiving splendid dinners provided by the Salvation Army.

Mr. H. L. Sayre was a business visitor in Cincinnati. Harry Marshall has taken a position at the C. S. Frazer shoe store to help during the absence of Brant Bell in Denver.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The repulsive subject of eating, how and when, is occupying an undue share of the thoughts of at least half of Broadway's actors this Yule season. SUIT FOR $25,000 DAMAGES RECALLS FATAL AUTO CRASH

Recalling a fatal auto accident on the Springfield and Xenia Pike, north of Yellow Springs last October 28, Emma Young, as administratrix of the estate of Charles W. Young, who lost his life in the accident, began suit in the Clark County Common Pleas Court Monday demanding $25,000 damages from J. W. Fink and J. C. Kearney, both of Springfield, O.

Young, a farmer living near Yellow Springs, was filling the gas tank of a truck driven by Bert Judy and belonging to Kearney, Springfield furniture mover, which had run out of fuel and had stalled on the highway.

While Young, the petition recites, was standing in front of the truck, an auto driven by Fink, president and general manager of the Fink and Heine meat packing company at Springfield, operated at about sixty miles an hour, crashed into the rear of the vehicle, pushing it forward twenty or thirty feet.

Young, it is charged, sustained injuries from which he died four hours later when he was knocked down or fell in front of the truck, which passed over his chest, crushing him.

The administratrix asserts that Young was filling the tank at the request of Judy, an employee of Kearney, and that the truck was standing along the side of the road with the rear portion extending three and one-half feet upon the travelled portion.

It is charged that Young's death was due solely to direct negligence and carelessness on the part of the

FENNEY EMPLOYEES RECEIVE BONUSES

Christmas bonus checks distributed by the J. C. Penney Co., among its 1021 stores now in operation totalled $412,307 and 4,832 women employees participated in the bonus distribution.

Total bonus distribution last year in the J. C. Penney Co., was $320,000.

Three employees of the local J. C. Penney Co. store participated in the bonuses given by the company this year, according to Purl E. Cox, manager. A maximum bonus for length of service went to Miss Wilma Plomerfelt. The women employees receiving the largest bonuses for sales volume were Mrs. Wilbur Street and Mrs. Robert Marshall.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Arthur Webb, Jasper Station, whose home was raided by county authorities in an unexpected Christmas eve visit, was admitted to $200 bond when arraigned in Common Pleas Court Wednesday on a charge of possessing liquor. Webb pleaded not guilty but his hearing date was not fixed by the court. Raising officers reported they confiscated a small amount of liquor.

Yellow Springs

The Bryan High School girls and boys basketball teams went to Bowersville Friday night where they played the Bowersville teams. The Bryan teams were victorious in both games, the girls score being 37 to 10. The boys score was 44 to 20. The Bryan teams will play some visiting team Friday night in their new gymnasium in the Bryan High School. The games are being well attended by the Yellow Springs folks.

The annual Christmas pageant under the direction of Mrs. G. W. Putnam was given Sunday evening in the Opera House. There were two performances and a very appreciative audience at both entertainments. There were no services in the local churches or Antioch College giving everyone an opportunity to attend this impressive pageant.

Miss Elizabeth Moorman left Wednesday for Chicago, Ill., where she will visit her aunt. On Christmas day she and Daniel Davitt were married. Mr. Davitt is a graduate of Antioch College and has a position teaching near Chicago. Mrs. Moorman left Sunday for Chicago to attend the wedding.

Miss Beatrice Stevens who has been in the Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton where she had an operation for appendicitis was able to be brought home Thursday.

A. C. Swinnerton left Friday for Oneida, N. Y., where he joined his wife and spent Christmas with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Swinnerton will spend a week in New York City before returning to Yellow Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Andrews are occupying their residence while they are in New York.

Miss Mabel Weiss returned home Saturday from New York where she is attending college.

Mrs. Reigtor and son, Ned, left Friday for New Orleans where they will spend the holidays with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Moredock, of Paducah, Kentucky, and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. Nell Jones, of Akron, Ohio, spent the week end with Mrs. Moredock's sister, Miss Irene Hawes. They motored to Cincinnati Christmas morning where they spent the day with their sister, Miss Anna Hawes.

Mrs. Cynthia Johnson passed away suddenly at her home Saturday morning. Death was caused by a heart attack. Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Presbyterian Church and was active in church work. Those surviving are her husband, Jacob Johnson and four brothers and three sisters. Those living here are William Alexander, Miss Anna Alexander and Mrs. Abbie Rahn. The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the residence with burial in Glen Forest Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bertrand and little daughter, of Madison, Wisconsin, arrived Monday to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder.

Miss Ethel Carlisle, of Buffalo, N. Y., is home for the Christmas vacation.

Mrs. T. R. Warren and son, of Mansfield are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Dawson.

Misses Mary Taylor of Paulsboro and Jean Taylor of Muskingum College are home for the holidays.

Mrs. George Drake has returned home from Cleveland where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Corry. Mrs. Corry and family returned with Mrs. Drake to spend the holiday season with her and other relatives.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
